THE baseball excitement ends, the Yankees' nine men from New York beat nine "Cardinals" from St. Louis four times in succession. And Babe Ruth made three home runs in the last game.

Nothing could be more desirable than to see a game like that, except to do something worth while yourself, if ever so little.

THERE are limits, it seems, to bootlegging. The Mayor of New York orders police to prosecute those that have been selling poisoned whisky, sometimes called "smoke," to miserable drunkards in slum speakeasies.

THE number killed by poisonous whisky in New York since last Saturday has risen to 26.

A thousand policemen are investigating speakeasies and have closed 40 of them, leaving, according to police calculations, about 24,960 still open.

When our government starts to make alcohol unfit for human consumption it succeeds.

THE Supreme Court decides that Canadians may cross the border to work on jobs here and go back in the evening, needing no passport.

The highest court having spoken, that settles that, and everybody will be glad to see our Canadian friends treated in a brotherly spirit.

BUT complications may arise. Earning high wages in the United States, spending them in Canada for anything you choose, including good cheap beer, may prove a temptation. Americans might move across the border to live, eat, drink and pay low rents there, while earning their money on this side?

BETWEEN Mohammed dead and Mussolini living, King Zogu, of Albania, chooses Mussolini.

A Mohammedan now, Zogu will change, become a Christian and marry an Italian princess, living thereafter in his Albanian palace under the shadow of Mussolini's wing.

Intelligent Zogu. He has read Mark Twain's statement that young June bug is better than an old bird of paradise.

Zogu knows that a living Mussolini is better than a dead prophet. You feel sorry for the Italian princess.

GOV. SMITH'S grandson, 2½ years old, appears in talking pictures with his grandfather. The little boy sings "The Sidewalks of New York" very well.

He also knows the first and second verses of "The Star Spangled Banner," which is more than you can say of many proud Americans 25 times his age.

THE American Association for the Advancement of Atheism demands a high powered radio station in New York City and does not get it, although the easiest way to make an Atheist ridiculous is to let him talk.

It is hard to understand how anybody could talk Atheism, knowing that his voice propelled by a power beyond comprehension, travels around the world through the mysterious ether?

ATHEISTS, young ones, especially, might meditate on one of Bacon's collected apothegms:

Simonides, being asked of Hiero "what he thought of God," asked a seven nights' time to consider of it; and at the seven nights' end he asked a fortnight's time; at the fortnight's end, a month.

At which Hiero marvelling, Simonides answered "that the longer he thought upon the matter the more difficult he found it."

The more glibly you answer King Hiero's question the less you know.

EG. GRACE, president of the Bethlehem Steel Company, discusses wages and wants to see them higher. Better standards of living, according to Mr. Grace, demand greater earnings for labor. "Continued prosperity and high wages go hand in hand." That's common sense. The big man can only get his share of what the little man earns ABOVE the minimum cost of living.

IN NEW YORK polling places are open, with the exception of one day, only from 5 to 10:30 p. m.

With women voting, that should be changed. Between 5 and 10:30 p. m. Mothers are busy getting supper, getting the children to bed, tucking them in, listening to their husbands' complaints.

CITY ACTS TO FIX BUS FARE

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

The Sun-Telegraph campaign against the 25-cent bus fare has at last resulted in action in the City Council.

An ordinance has been ordered prepared which will give the city a voice in the policies of the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company.

Councilman P. J. McArdle yesterday moved that steps be taken to place the bus lines under the direction of the Traction Conference Board, which now oversees the operations of the Pittsburgh Railways Company.

The action was taken after Councilman W. Y. English had offered a motion to have City Solicitor C. A. Waldschmidt report on the city's ability to regulate bus fares through the board.

The ordinance which Solicitor Waldschmidt is now preparing will be similar to one which was allowed to die with the old council after being under consideration two years ago.

The original bill was approved by the Traction Conference Board of which Charles A. Finley, former head of the Public Works Department is chairman.

Under its terms the coach company would be obliged to submit to the city and the traction board a detailed budget giving estimates of gross receipts and proposed expenditures. These would determine the rates of fare to be charged, subject to the approval of the Public Service Commission. Excessive revenue would result in a reduction in fares while inadequate revenue would bring about a petition for higher fares.

In the event that the board's action should not be satisfactory to the company or the city, the controversy would be arbitrated as provided in the traction agreement.

The board would have the right to audit the company's books and

"Half Wives" $50 Prize Cheers Wife Who Lost $30

MRS. MARTHA BARBER, 1721 Montpelier street, Dormont, had just lost her purse containing $30 on an automobile trip. She was dismayed. Just then a Sun-Telegraph representative called and told her she had won the second prize of $50 in the "Half Wives" essay contest.

"Martha," said a friend, who was with her at the time, "you are a lucky woman."

"The prize is certainly welcome," remarked Mrs. Barber.

The list of prize winners in the "Half Wives" essay contest will be found on page 15.

FRANCE HEDGES ON OUSTING HORAN

PARIS, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Expulsion from France of Harold Horan, correspondent of the New York American and other Hearst newspapers, has been postponed by the government. It was announced that an investigation would be made of all angles of the case.

Horan had been requested to leave France by tomorrow because of his connection with the publication of a French diplomatic memorandum of the Anglo-French naval accord.

By ROBERT J. PREW.
Universal Service Special Cable.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—The comic opera holdup of Harold J. T. Horan, Universal Service Paris correspondent, and the expulsion order issued against him by the French government held the field in last night's London newspapers. It was the biggest news sensation of the week.

Some of the editorial comment strongly sympathizes with the victimized correspondent and Universal Service is praised for doing a service for world peace in publishing the text of the Anglo-French agreement.

COMIC OPERA METHODS

Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard declares:

"The absurdity which from the beginning has surrounded the affair of the Naval pact, has been brought to a fine culmination by the excitability of the French. Few recent episodes in any capital of Europe can have been much more ridiculous than yesterday's arrest of Mr. Horan, Paris correspondent of Universal Service.

"As though he had been a dangerous armed criminal who must be taken unawares if he is to be taken at all, police on bicycles lay in wait for him and seize him in the Rue Da La Paix. He was put through the third degree, his examination lasting seven hours and being reminiscent of the more lurid stories that come from his own country.

"He was released only on condition of signing a confession and a document consenting to his own expulsion.

"The first thing that strikes one about the affair is its almost imbecile ineffectiveness. Mr. Horan seems to know nothing about the French foreign office letter concerning the pact save that it was handed to him by Mr. Hearst for transmission to America.

"Moreover, his expulsion will not restore the document to its condition of secrecy nor act as a deterrent to any other journalist who may at some future time find himself in possession of equally important information.

"It might be logical, though it would hardly be wise, to exclude all foreign newspaper correspondents from France. But even that would leave the indigenous product

RUM PROBE CHARGES DENIED BY SCORES

"Not guilty!"

Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh and 120 other defendants, including politicians and police officials of high and low degree, so pleaded today in Federal Court to the indictment charging them with conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws.

When the "big parade" was over these results were shown:

One hundred and twenty-one pleaded not guilty.

Two—George Altmeyer and Cyril K. Schleicher, both of the South Side—pleaded guilty.

Two others—Eugene Cappi and Arnold Thornburg, both of the North Side—pleaded nolle contendere.

FORFEITS $5,000 BAIL

Two, John J. Winkler and George Miladin, forfeited $5,000 bail each by failing to appear. Norman G. Teske was listed as ill.

Thirty-seven of the 167 indicted are unaccounted for, one is dead, and one is in the penitentiary and one—Al Forney, slot machine baron—is in jail.

GRENET AND SULLIVAN

Among those who entered pleas of not guilty were Representatives Samuel J. Grenet and Luke Sullivan, Police Inspectors Charles Faulkner, John J. McArdle and Joseph J. Elsner, besides a number of police lieutenants, patrolmen and ward chairmen.

United States Attorney John D. Meyer announced that all the cases would be brought up for trial at the November term of court, to open November 13, and that the North Side defendants would be called for trial first.

In addition to those indicted in the booze conspiracy cases five witnesses

Asked About Towing

SOPHIE ADNAR

The probing grand jury, turning its attention to police arrangements with garages for towing and storing automobiles of persons arrested, today subpenaed Sophie Adnar, bookkeeper, New Allies Garage, 3131 Forbes street, and asked her what she knew about cars stored there for city police.

Sift Graft in Auto-Towing

There was some hope today that the prayer of Pittsburgh's motoring population would be answered, that their plea to be delivered from an unjust, unfair and ruthless "towing graft system" would fall upon the sympathetic ears of a grand jury that has the power to indict the lowest—and the highest—policeman.

Before the grand jury hearing the charges that graft and collusion are spread through the city police force, District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner today was trying to reveal whether motorists are being "gypped" by garage owners and police, whether autos are being towed on the smallest provocation—or without provocation—from in front of homes to garages, from outside ball parks and stadiums and theaters to storage houses that set up impressive rate cards.

Gardner said he turned to this investigation of the towing system after a witness before the grand jury had complained of being victimized by it. Some of the garage owners collect between $150 and $200 nightly, the District Attorney said he had been informed.

For years, car owners have been complaining that once their machines have been whisked away to garages, whose owners are said to be political favorites, it is a matter of dollars to regain those cars; that exorbitant storage rates are charged and cars are kept overtime; that the garages are owned by politicians or would-be politicians.

CLERKS WITNESSES

Gardner had 25 witnesses assembled today for the investigation which was inspired by John J. Verona, the rebellious Republican of the Third Ward, who has split with the Kline administration. These witnesses were girl clerks in these garages, and other employes. The girls brought with them records by which Gardner was able to show the grand jury just how many dollars were taken in and, possibly, what disposition was made of all those dollars.

Before he took up the examination of these witnesses Gardner directed Thomas Hufnagle, of McKees Rocks, to Judge James B. Drew's court. Arraigned on charges of contempt for failure to respond to a subpena, Hufnagle explained that he had mistaken the date of his scheduled appearance. Judge Drew fined him $25 and warned him that "we mean business."

QUIZ GIRLS

Witnesses called in connection with the towing-graft inquiry were: David Heck, Central Garage, Wylie and Tunnel street; Sophie Adner, bookkeeper, and Manuel Epstein, New Allies Garage, 3131 Forbes street; Anna Blaces, bookkeeper, Produce Motor Company, 2306 Penn avenue; Charles Sable, Center Ave-

Steel Trade Gains

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Unfilled tonnage of the United States Steel Corporation as of September 30 was 3,698,368 tons, an increase of 74,325 tons over August 31, and an increase of 550,255 tons over September 30 of last year, it was announced today.

The corporation's unfilled tonnage has reflected the steady improvement in the steel industry during recent months. The unfilled tonnage on June 30 was 3,637,009. On July 31 it fell to 3,570,927, reflecting a temporary slump, owing to hot weather. On August 31 the tonnage rose to 3,624,043.

Convict 3 In Phila. Probe

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—Capt. William C. Knoell and District Detectives Herbert Layre and John Sells are confined in the county prison today without bail pending an appeal in the conviction of Layre on charges of bribery and extortion. The other men pleaded guilty.

They are the first members of the police force to be convicted in the grand jury probe of police corruption.

The declaration of Mayor Harry A. Mackey that the police force has been free of graft since his administration began, January 2, last, resulted in a terse reply from District Attorney John Monaghan that he is holding $10,000 collected by grafting policemen since Mackey became mayor. He also called attention to two police captains now awaiting trial for bribe taking in the last two months.

REGISTRATION LIGHT AT MONONGAHELA CITY

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 10.—The remainder of the United States may be deeply aroused over the coming national election, but Monongahela City is not, the 1928 registration in that third class city being 2,846 as compared to 2,951 for the last presidential election.

WOMAN SEES HUSBAND FALL FROM TREE, DIES

MEADVILLE, Pa., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Seeing her husband fall from a tree, Mrs. J. Leroy Spitler, 57, fell dead yesterday. Her husband was removed to a hospital suffering from injuries to his side.

Dallying Lawyers Scored

Attorneys who delay trial of cases in Common Pleas Court by reporting they are not ready for trial, or who fail to answer when cases are called, were scored severely by Judge Thomas D. Carnahan when the trial list was read this morning. Nearly a score of cases were called and in more than half, no attorney appeared either to go to trial or ask a postponement.

JUDGE RAPS DELAY

Judge James B. Drew had a few forceful things to say to the entire Bar Association during the trial of an attack case involving two Negroes in Criminal Court.

After counsel for both sides had taken what the court felt was far too much time to pick a jury, Judge Drew interrupted the proceedings and delivered this broadside:

"This slow procedure is silly. It costs the county thousands of dollars each year. You attorneys don't know anything about the jury panel. I would stake my reputation that you don't know two members on the panel. I wish I had all the members of the bar here to tell them all the same thing."

Yesterday 160 jurors were ready for duty, each employed at $4 a day, but owning to the dallying tactics of attorneys, there was nothing for jurors to do. Today Judge Carnahan said:

MUST END TRIFLING

"Many of you attorneys are trifling with the courts, and this must end. Yesterday, after inexcusable delays, attorneys reported that in the cases listed, there were nine consent verdicts and 15 amicable settlements. Why were these settlements not reported before the clerk called the list and the Court routine virtually was broken down by the carelessness of counsel in

Warden of Fire Trap Accused

LOGAN, O., Oct. 10.—An affidavit charging that H. C. Blosser, deputy warden in charge of the Junction City penal brick plant, where 17 prisoners lost their lives in a dormitory fire early Monday, was drunk on the streets of Logan Saturday night was issued here today by Mayor J. P. Rochester, and officers from Hocking county and Perry county are en route to Junction City to arrest Blosser, it was reported here this afternoon.

According to the men who swore to the affidavit, Blosser was taken into custody here Saturday night because of his drunken condition, but was released because of the pleas of a woman companion who promised to take the man back to Junction City.

Pittsburgh Sees Big Blimp

Necks were craned today. One after another, heads were tilted and eyes were lifted to the clouds.

And what was in the clouds?

The Los Angeles!

The biggest blimp in the country! The ship that was here for the balloon races last May! And it soared directly, majestically over the Sun-Telegraph building at 2:38 p. m.

On its way back to its hangar at Lakehurst, N. J., from Texas, the pride of the Navy hummed through the West and into the East, saying "hello" to Chicago, Toledo, Cleveland, New Castle, East Liverpool, Steubenville and other points.

Hundreds of telephone calls deluged the Sun-Telegraph from early morning until the Leviathan of the ether passed on its way to the Jersey flats.

Fire Hits Babcock Estate

Ten prize cattle were saved by volunteer firemen from Valencia and employes of "Vosemary Farm" early today when fire destroyed a $75,000 barn on the summer estate of County Commissioner E. V. Babcock, lumber man.

The farm, located on the Three-Degree road near Gibsonia, is one of the show-places of the district.

Flames were discovered in the structure shortly after 5 o'clock by a watchman on the place. The cattle were taken from the stalls with little confusion.

The volunteer fire department from Valencia, a mile and a half away, answered the alarm and extinguished the blaze after several hours fighting it. Commissioner Babcock said that the barn cost $75,000.

SEIZE SLOT MACHINES IN RAID AT RANKIN

Independent of the grand jury vice probe now being conducted by District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner, county detectives today raided the store and poolroom of Joseph Andolina, 201 Miller street, Rankin, and reported confiscating one five-cent and one 25-cent gambling machine. Andolina was charged with maintaining gambling devices in an information made before Alderman George Anderson and was released on $1,000 bail for a hearing.

CHILDREN'S SWING CHAIN FATHER'S SUICIDE NOOSE

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Oct. 10.—A chain from his children's swing was used by Gay Henderson, 48, of Mt. Morris, father of six, as a noose with which to hang himself from a tree in his yard. Financial troubles were blamed for his suicide. He was an oil field worker.

ZEPPELIN STARTS ON OCEAN FLIGHT TO AMERICA AT DAWN

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND.
(Copyright, 1928, King Features Syn., Inc.)

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Oct. 10.—The Graf Zeppelin, with which Germany expects to demonstrate the practicability of transocean air traffic between Europe and America, did not start for Lakehurst this morning as had been hoped.

With the 50 pounds of baggage allowed each passenger all packed, and 20 passengers, including Prussian minister of the interior Albert Grezesinski; chief of the German air ministry Ernst Bradenburg; Col. Emilio Herrera, representative of Spain, and Lieutenant Commander C. E. Rosendahl, of the Los Angeles, last night preparing to take their last dinner in Europe before the flight, Dr. Eckener sent an announcement to Kurgarten Hotel that "there will be no start tomorrow."

The winds and the weather outmaneuvered the old German "air dog," and checkmated his plans. Commodore Eckener refuses to expose his only airship to unnecessary stress or danger.

The start has now been tentatively set for Thursday morning.

Dr. Eckener, sitting in front of his desk in his office, with the ever-present recording barometer at his right, and a view of the landing field and distant lake and Alps through the window at his left, was poring over weather charts extending from New York to Friedrichshafen when I entered.

"That dirty mess out there," he said, pointing in the general direction of the Atlantic, "is not yet breaking up or shifting its position. It extends practically from Newfoundland to the Bay of Biscay and as far south as the Azores."

The Graf Zeppelin's passenger list for its first transocean flight is as international as a steamer's. No less than six nations are represented. The Americans aboard will include C. E. Rosendahl, lieutenant commander of the U. S. Navy; Frederick Gilfallen, Robert Reiner, and Karl H. von Wiegand. Spain will be represented by Col. Emilio Herrerra, of Madrid; the English passenger will be Lady Drummond Hay; German passengers will be Count Alexander von Bradenstein-Zeppelin; Prussian Minister of the Interior Albert Grzesinski; Chief of the German Air Ministry Ernst Bradenburg; Government Meteorologist Dr. Benckendorff; Dr. Krueger, representing the Government Institute of Aeronautics; Heinrich von Tyscka, Robert Hartmann, Rolf Brandt, Walter Kleffel, Prof. Ludwig Dettmann, Herr Bock, Herr Schlitz.

Switzerland will have a passenger aboard in the person of Joseph Meyer. Dr. Theo Matejko is an Austrian. Grzesinski represents the federal council of Germany, which is the German senate.

I do not know whether it is valor or ignorance, but the score of passengers who are at the Kurgarten Hotel awaiting for the announcement of the hour of departure, manifest no more anxiety or fear than if they were about to step on an ocean liner.

POINT FOR MEYER

United States Attorney Meyer won the first clash of what is certain to be a bitterly-fought legal battle, when Judges R. M. Gibson and F. P. Schoonmaker refused motions to quash the indictment. The court, however, permitted the attorneys to file motions for bills of particulars on or before Saturday, requesting the Federal attorney to give more definite information on which a defense might be based.

Counsel argued a motion to quash, filed Monday, in behalf of Joseph W. Jeffries, along with a number of subsequent motions in which it was set forth that the indictment was "vague, indefinite" and deprived the defendants of constitutional rights in that they were not aware of the offenses charged against them and for which they were to be tried.

Among the galaxy of lawyers present in the courtroom who had filed motions for bills of particulars were Attorneys Oliver K. Eaton, Edward G. Coll, Louis Little and Charles Lane, said to represent some of the more prominent politicians and police officials.

Attorney Eaton, in his motion for a bill of particulars in behalf of Representative Grenet, set forth that the charges in the indictment are not specified, but are "so general that the defendant is unable to prepare his defense." Eaton asked that the court require the United States Attorney to give more particular information in the nature of specifications as to the acts upon which he intends to rely in the prosecution of Grenet and to suspend trial of the case until this is done.

In pleading not guilty, John Burke entered a plea in abatement on the ground that his real name is John Burkowski and that "may not be" the man named in the indictment.

After John Harkins had pleaded not guilty, he was arrested in the courtroom on an old dry law violation charge by a deputy U. S. marshal.

these cases? This trifling with the courts must end at once."

One case was called for trial today and the attorney explained the case had been hanging fire since 1923 and that he was not sure his client is still alive.

Judge Carahan had notified attorneys that if their cases were not ready for trial when called, they would be put at the bottom of the list. It is reported that some attorneys purposely seek this delay, hoping for a more favorable verdict for their clients after public interest in the cases has died.

HOMESTEAD AUTOIST HELD IN MERCER JAIL

MERCER, Pa., Oct. 10.—The bail bond of Francis Patterson, of Homestead Park, Allegheny county, arrested here Sunday night, was set at $2,500. Patterson is still in jail. He is charged with driving while intoxicated, transporting liquor, and with assault and battery. He is alleged to have hit the car of Fred Greenlee, of Polk, injuring Mrs. Greenlee, an aged woman, and her granddaughter. Patterson's hearing is set for today.

After remembering five grandchildren with $100 each, Mrs. Ellen Shearer, Millvale, left her $12,500 estate to three daughters, Mrs. Millie Swavel, Mrs. Mary L. Ross and Mrs. Elsie A. Jordan, the latter named executrix.

REPORTER PRAISED FOR TREATY EXPOSE

untouched. Last week the Echo de Paris was permitted unchallenged and uncontradicted to publish full summaries of all diplomatic correspondence which accompanied the pact.

"What does the French government propose to do about that? We do not credit the French government with any particular sinister intention in this latest performance. It has, on the whole, shown rather more common sense than our own and has at least favored official publication. But even about this there has been mystery and absurdity.

"First of all M. Briand said that he had not urged publication on the British government and then he admitted that he had. There was no reconciliation of these two statements. In all probability there is no explanation save that the pact seems to afflict with a sort of lightheadness everyone who comes into contact with it.

"Today again we have a touch of the ridiculous in the publication of the summary of Italy's reply to the document which has not yet been officially given to the world. What purpose the British Foreign office thinks it has served by maintaining this state of affairs is not clear.

"We may urge, however, that one purpose has been served, even if unintentionally. If the American public was ever inclined to think of the affair as a conspiracy it must by now realize that it is no more than a conspiracy of comic opera."

The Evening Star says that Mr. Hearst's idea of the reflex of the French treatment of Horan may be gained by his statement today of French machinations and secret diplomacy, and adds:

"There is a world of difference between the methods of Washington and Paris. Even if Mr. Hearst and Mr. Horan between them wrought evil there is no question that out of it has come good. But for their officially inopportune revelation we might still be without even the information we have of this precious pact, and the atmosphere of suspicion which has already developed two continents might have been still more intensified.

"The least the British government can now do to rehabilitate itself and the country in the eyes of the world is to publish fully all the documents and acknowledge frankly that the pact is as dead as a door nail and enter with clean unfettered hands into new negotiations for which America has expressed herself as willing."

PARIS EDITORS DIVIDED

PARIS, Oct. 10.—Paris editors today were divided in their opinion as to the propriety of the French government's drastic action in arresting Harold J. T. Horan, Paris correspondent of Universal Service, for making public the foreign office letter to ambassadors on the details of the Franco-British naval agreement.

Horan was surrounded by bicycle police while driving in Rue De La Paix in his automobile and held for over seven hours for questioning, undergoing the third degree in the office of the prefecture of police.

"It is certain that the measures taken against Horan are justified by the fact that in publishing a French diplomatic document which was confidential it was manifest that the American correspondent committed an offense which required punishment," says Temps, tonight.

Camille Aymard, in La Liberte, takes a different view:

"Is there from the viewpoint of law a crime? No. Horan only performed his newspaper duty. Why don't they get after the culpable person who communicated a document entrusted to his charge?

"For a long time it has been noised about in political quarters that the communicating was done by a functionary of the foreign ministry to embarrass the action of the responsible ministers and the French government. This incident may bring others having serious consequences for our country.

"For some years the American press has placed offices in Paris. Thus France was becoming the center of political information for America. Now the group of American newspapers may decide to transfer their bureaus to London if the measure taken against Horan is maintained.

"Horan has not committed any fault. As a newspaper correspondent he has only fulfilled the role of disseminating information. He cannot be blamed. Let them denounce the man who is really to blame and then punish him."

A writer in L'Intransigeant says:

"The French government is right in punishing Horan. Any other government in its place would have done the same. The French government does not want a foreigner living in France who tried to spoil the good relations between Paris and Washington, or Washington and London, to go unpunished."

RAP DEPORTATION MOVE

L'Action Francaise stated "the deportation action is sheer madness. It will serve to antagonize the entire corps of American journalists in France."

L'Oeucre declared that no blame rested upon Horan's shoulders "but with the altogether too many 'leaks' existing in our public offices."

L'Ami du Peuple asserted: "Inasmuch as the French government declares that the document in question is not a secret, why this comedy of deportation? It will certainly serve only to further muddle the whole case."

Gustave Herve, a prominent commentator writing in La Victoire upheld Horan as having done only what any other wideawake newspaperman in his position would have done.

"When a reporter 'breaks' a story of such sensational news value," he wrote, "he is within his rights in refusing to divulge the source of his information. The government employe who caused the 'leak' but still goes unpunished is the guilty one. Are the authorities really seeking him?"

U. S. Moves to Protect Hearst Reporter

WASHINGTON, October 10.—Strong demand for the protection of the legal rights of Harold J. T. Horan, Universal Service correspondent at Paris, now under an expulsion order to leave France tomorrow, was made by the American government yesterday.

Instructions were sent by the State Department to Norman Armour, charge d'affaires of the American embassy at Paris, to see that Horan's rights as an American citizen received the fullest consideration.

GIRL OF 17 ARRESTED AS BOGUS SOLICITOR

SHARON, Pa., Oct. 10.—Admitting she was a bogus solicitor for "needy families," Agnes Moss, 17, of Lansingville, O., was turned over to a Mahoning county (O.) probation officer. She told police she kept no account of money collected. She had $1 when arrested.

MORE RAIDS LOOM

The procedure established yesterday of raiding premises of witnesses who admit selling liquor or maintaining slot machines will be followed out today. When a witness admits he is the possessor for sale of illegal beverages county detectives will be sent out to bring in evidence of the witness' variety.

This process was carried out in five raids by the sleuths. In three cases Gardner contented himself with laying the evidence before the grand jury, but two of the witnesses were arraigned before aldermen and held for court. These latter were Matthew Maronovich, saloonkeeper, of 730 East Ohio street, and John Placenck, steward of the Pittsburgh Yacht Club's boathouse at the foot of Madison avenue, North Side.

MORE DIXIE SPEECHES URGED ON SMITH

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Gov. Smith presided over a political clinic here today before setting out to penetrate Dixie and the politically-skittish states that border it on the North.

From early morning there was a stream of Democratic leaders in and out of the Smith suite on the fourteenth floor of the Hotel Biltmore, the only New York home the Governor has any more. Most of them came to counsel, to advise, to urge, or to warn. Many others came to cheer. And there were some who came merely to "see Al" and to observe what, if any, change there has been in him since his recent intimate contact with the wide open spaces of the corn and wheat country.

MORE SPEECHES URGED

One bit of advice was dinned at him persistently. It was to the effect that he should not limit himself to one speech this week in his tour of the South and border states.

Tomorrow Gov. Smith will be in Virginia and North Carolina. Friday he will be in Tennessee, and Saturday will be spent in Kentucky. While none of his advisers pretended to believe that there was any chance of his losing Virginia, or, in fact, North Carolina, some of his most important counsellors urged that he not spend an entire day in Tennessee, seeming as it undoubtedly is, with the religious and prohibition issues, without saying a few words to the crowds in Chattanooga and Nashville.

The Governor had intended to make but one speech this week, that in Louisville Saturday night, when he will make plain his ideas on the tariff. Thus far he has been obdurate toward extending his speech-making activities.

Whether the views of National Chairman John J. Raskob, Norman H. Davis, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Senator Pat Harrison, and others, will now move him to abandon his hitherto set policy remains to be seen. The Democratic nominee is a determined man once he makes up his mind. This was evidenced time and again on his western tour when the crowds that everywhere besieged him en route had to be content with a wave of the brown derby instead of "a few remarks."

The very fact that the Democratic nominee is going into Virginia and North Carolina at all represents a concession on his part. He had wanted to consider the South as other Democratic presidential nominees have always considered it—safe in its Democratic solidarity—and it was only in response to the pleading of his advisers that he consented to route his train through two of the states that have never given their electoral votes to a Republican presidential candidate, Virginia and North Carolina.

would have access to all its properties and records.

The traction board would be empowered to make recommendations on service and rates. These must be adopted or rejected by the company within 10 days, after which they would be settled by arbitration.

The ordinance and agreement with the company would eliminate the necessity for protracted legal battles before the Public Service Commission such as those in the water and gas rate cases.

President James F. Malone proposed that when the new ordinance is drawn, that its terms be made for the remainder of the period for which the ten-year agreement between the railways company and the city has to run, roadsr.

The executives of the transportation committee of the Allied Boards of Trade held their first meeting yesterday at the office of George P. Koontz, president of the organization.

Policies to be followed in the investigation of the 25-cent bus fare and the street car service were determined, according to C. V. Shoup, chairman of the committee. The method of procedure to be followed in making a complete survey of the activities of the Pittsburgh Railways Company and the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company was discussed.

A meeting of the full committee will be held tonight. Plans will be laid before the members and the delegates from the 48 member organizations of the Allied Boards of Trade will be named.

Lower bus fares for children were announced by the Chicago Motor Coach Company yesterday. Children aged less than 12 years will be allowed to ride for 5 cents. The old rate was 10 cents for both children and adults.

Lindy Good Auto Driver, Gets N. Y. License

NEW YORK, Oct. 10. — The state of New York today allowed that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh can drive an automobile and granted him an operator's license.

Lindbergh took a road test yesterday through the streets of Garden City. The motor vehicle inspector kept the ace under the driving wheel of the automobile for half an hour.

The flying colonel gave his address as the home of Harry Guggenheim, Sands Point, L. I., in making his application and said that he had automobile driving licenses in other states.

GREENE CO. DEMOCRATS HAVE LARGE MAJORITY

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Oct. 10. — Greene county voters take their politics straight. With a peak registration of 18,740, only 299 are entered in the Prohibition and Socialist parties or claiming no party affiliation. Democrats are in the majority with 10,842 qualified voters against 7,584 registered as Republicans.

A FAMILY HAS A WEDDING

TWO SISTERS WED, OTHERS BRIDESMAIDS

If there had only been a priest in the family and another son to have been one of the best men, the Braddock Eschers today could have had an exclusive wedding, with the Schums and Watsons supplying a bridegroom each. Edna F. Escher, 21, 515 Second avenue, today married Clayton B. Schum, 23, 930 Talbot street, and in the same ceremony her sister, Florence J., 23, married Francis B. Watson, 21, 535 Railroad street. But wait! Miss Alice and Miss Margaret Escher were bridesmaids and Edward Escher was one best man. The other, Michael McGrain, was borrowed for the occasion. Above are (left to right) the Watsons, the Schums, McGrain, Miss Alice, Miss Margaret and Edward.

'GENERAL MAKER' HUNTED AS CHECKS PROVE FLAT

Just like this—snappity-snap!—"Rev. J. Solomon" created captains and lieutenants and generals and colonels. And then he gave them tambourines and uniforms and had them stroll the streets collecting dimes or what-have-you.

That was the complaint of three women in Morals Court today. Mrs. Lillian Hooks, of 16 East Robinson street, said she had cashed a $25 check for Solomon which subsequently proved to be worth as much as a counterfeit ruble. Margaret Hartman, 18, and Alberta Cogolin, 20, of 202 River avenue, complained that they had been named captains in the "Volunteer Rescue Army."

Police are looking for Solomon, said to be tall, to wear a cap and to sign himself General.

MOTORISTS REFUSE LIFT TO 82-YEAR-OLD HIKER

If you should see a white-haired old man tottering along the highway, burdened with a heavy overcoat, a suitcase and a handbag, would you stop and give him a lift?

Henry L. Burt, 82, who arrived in Pittsburgh on foot from Philadelphia today, says that thousands of motorists passed him during the course of his six-weeks' journey, and though he would have welcomed help, only one autoist invited him to ride. The Good Samaritan in question carried him 10 miles, then had to turn off on a side road. With that exception, Burt said, he made the entire trip across the state on "shank's mare."

Burt, a painter, could obtain no work in Philadelphia. His funds being exhausted, he started back to his old home in Chicago on foot. He made from five to ten miles a day. One day he fell into a hole and was so injured that he could proceed no further. He spent the night in the open by the roadside.

Burt's case was called to the attention of the Volunteers of America, who arranged to send him by train to Chicago, where he is said to have well-to-do relatives.

STANLEY IN GIANT FILM MERGER

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—A $200,000,000 motion picture combination, through which Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., obtains control of the Vitaphone Corporation, the Stanley Company of America and First National Pictures, Inc., was announced last night in a joint statement issued by H. M. Warner, president of Warner Brothers and Vitaphone, and Irving D. Rossheim, president of Stanley Company and First National.

Contracts covering the merger, which involves companies whose annual gross income is said be in excess of $100,000,000, have been signed and are subject only to formal ratification by the stockholders. As a result of the acquisitions, Warner Brothers becomes one of the largest producing, distributing and exhibiting companies in the motion picture field.

The various companies will retain their organizations, the announcement said, and there will be no change in personnel.

The combination, it was said, will assure the Stanley Company, which has a chain of theaters in the East and an annual purchasing power of $10,000,000 for film rentals, a continuous supply of Vitaphone talking pictures from Warner Brothers and from First National Pictures.

MORE TALKIES

First National will go into the production of talking pictures on an extensive scale, aided by the facilities and equipment of Warner brothers.

The new board of directors of Warner Brothers will consist of H. M. Warner, Major Albert Warner and J. D. Warner; Henry A. Rudkin, Irving D. Rossheim, Simon Fabian, Moe Mark, Morris Wolf and Waddill Catchings.

TWO FRACTURE ARMS AS AUTO OVERTURNS

Two pals are in McKeesport Hospital, each with a fractured left arm, sustained in the same accident. Leo O'Neil, 21, of 531 Olive street, and James Rooney, 25, 2310 Stewart street, both of McKeesport, were returning home at 1 o'clock this morning when their auto upset while rounding a corner at Thirteenth and Jenny Lind streets, McKeesport.

HUSBAND DYING AFTER ATTACK

With Andrew Denofreo, 39, of 2200 Penn avenue, reported dying in St. Francis Hospital, police at the Penn avenue station are holding five persons, including the wife of the injured man, in connection with an attack upon him in his home early this morning. Police say the husband was attacked when he returned home and found his wife feeding two men not regular boarders at his home.

Those under arrest are Mary Denofreo, 39, the wife; Antonio Bezzono, 61, and Tony Ross, 38, boarders in the home, and George Jackson, 48, of 1842 Lowrie street, and Mick Dimirack, 17, of 2209 Spring way.

RED CROSS AIDS 1,250,000

The American Red Cross has given aid to more than 1,250,000 disaster sufferers during the organization's fiscal year, according to figures contained in its annual report and made public here today by local Red Cross officials. This does not include 500,000 cared for in the recent tropical hurricane.

Relief was extended by the American society following 66 disasters in this country and 22 abroad and a total of 1,350,000 persons were helped. Of these 700,000 were in the United States, while 650,000 were in the nine foreign countries where relief work was conducted, or in the insular and foreign possessions of the United States.

SCHOOL HEAD TO PRESIDE AT DR. DAVIS MEMORIAL

A memorial service for Dr. Herbert B. Davis, former principal of the H. C. Frick Training School for Teachers, will be held at 3 p. m. next Sunday in Emory Methodist Episcopal Church. Dr. William M. Davidson, superintendent of public schools, will preside.

Move to Extradite Jaworski

A move to bring Paul Jaworski from Cleveland to Pittsburgh secretly was begun today in the wake of announcements that Ohio was willing to let Pennsylvania bear the cost of exacting punishment from Pittsburgh's super-bandit and leader of the Flathead mob.

George Murren, chief of county detectives, announced that he would ask a bench warrant for Jaworski's detention as a fugitive from justice in this state. A requisition was to be sent to Gov. Vic Donahey of Ohio.

These papers, according to Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park, were to be lodged with Cleveland authorities, to be used in the event of a transfer of custody.

When the transfer is arranged, Jaworski will be slipped out of Cleveland under heavy guard and brought to Pittsburgh. Fear that members of the disbanded Flathead Mob might attempt to rescue their leader was back of Murren's intention to keep the details of the transfer secret.

District Attorney S. H. Gardner last night said the Cleveland authorities were willing to relinquish Jaworski if they could be assured he had no chance of escaping the electric chair by coming back to Pittsburgh.

Under death sentence here for the murder of a payroll guard, Jaworski was arrested in Cleveland last month after he is said to have killed a policeman. Cleveland police want to be sure he is punished for the crime in their city, Gardner said.

Gardner talked to E. C. Stanton, prosecutor of Cuyahoga county, Ohio, yesterday and was asked for the status of the case against Jaworski here. Prompted by an eagerness to have Jaworski executed, Cleveland residents are desirous of having Jaworski turned over to Pennsylvania authorities, Mr. Gardner said.

VOTE RUSH MAY SWAMP NEW CASTLE BOARDS

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Oct. 10.—Because of heavy registration in some of the districts here it is believed that all votes cannot be cast by closing time with the present election boards.

HILLES AIDS HOOVER PLAN N. Y. DRIVE

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Believeing his position clear on the disposition of the gomernment's $100,000,000 Muscle Shoals project, Herbert Hoover turned his attention today to plans for his visit to New York City, October 22.

The Republican nominee invited Charles D. Hilles, national committeeman, and H. Edmund Machold, state chairman, here from the Empire state, to complete a program for his visit. Hoover will speak that night in Madison Square Garden and has agreed to devote the day to conferences in New York City with Republican leaders from all over the state.

CONFERS WITH LEADERS

Hoover also discussed the subject of his speech with the New York leaders. This address will be the nominee's big effort to win the Empire state away from Gov. Al Smith and the speech will be prepared carefully. It was indicated at his headquarters that Republican prosperity, administrative economy and "good times" would be the keynotes of the speech.

Hoover meanwhile announced that his Boston speech, scheduled for Monday night, October 15, will be devoted to the tariff, foreign trade and possibly the merchant marine. This was predicted last week, as Hoover plans to win New England on an appeal to the business instincts of the "down East" voters.

The candidate will stand upon his Muscle Shoals announcement and undoubtedly will not touch upon that subject again during the remainder of the campaign. It was said he believes he has cleared up all confusion regarding his position on governmental ownership and operation of such projects and that it is not necessary for him to continue the discussion.

PIN IN CHILD'S THROAT, OHIOANS RUSH TO PHILA.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 10.—Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Ratell, Warren, made a hurried trip yesterday to Philadelphia with their 2-year-old daughter Lillian, who swallowed a safety pin. The parents weer advised to consult a Philadelphia specialist.

Who Killed The Secret Naval Pact? "I," Said—

LONDON, Oct. 10.—President Coolidge, Mussolini, Stanley Baldwin and Aristides Briand are romping here today in nursery rhyme from the fanciful pen of David Low, famous Evening Standard political cartoonist. London is visibly amused.

The cartoon was inspired by the French Republic's persecution of Harold Horan, Hearst newspapers' correspondent in Paris, for his scoop on the publication of the secret British-French naval pact, and makes "Cock Robin" live again in 1928.

Here's the atmosphere: Cock Robin, the role played by the British-French naval pact, is dead! Mr. Low casts as his slayers William Randolph Hearst, owner of the service that supplied the exclusive pact story to newspapers, and Lord Beaverbrook, publisher of the Evening Standard, which printed the Hearst story exclusively in London. The others in the cast, all feathery creatures fluttering in a treetop at Cock Robin's post-morten, are: Foreign Secretary Sir Austen Chamberlain; Foreign Minister Aristides Briand, France; Lord Cushenden, acting British Foreign Secretary in the absence of Chamberlain; Mussolini; President Coolidge, and Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin. Here is the drama:

"Who killed the pact?"

"We," said the press, "we published the mess, we killed the pact."

"Who saw it die?"

"I," said Sir Eyeglass, "with my little spyglass, I saw it die."

"Who saw its blood?"

"I," said Briand, "je vois toujours le sang (I saw its blood)."

"Who'll make its shroud?"

"I," said Lord Cush, in a secret hush, hush, "I'll make its shroud."

"Who'll toll the bell?"

"I," said Il Duce, glad of the excuse, "I'll toll the bell."

The Tombstone Inscription:

HERE LIES THE FRANCO-BRITISH NAVAL PACT.

"Who'll dig its grave?"

"I," said Cool Cal, "sure I'll say I shall. I'll dig its grave."

"Who'll sing a psalm?"

"I," said poor Stanley in tones soft and manly, "I'll sing a psalm."

General Refrain:

"All the birds of the air fell asighing and asobbing when they heard of the death of this bit of cockeyed jobbing."

WHERE THE STATE LEAVES OFF—

ROUGH-RIDING TO CARNEGIE

Rough riding is ahead, probably throughout the coming winter, for vehicles using Noblestown road between Pittsburgh and Carnegie. The State Highway Department is placing concrete to improve the roadway through Scott township and on the Greentree borough side of the highway down the center of which runs the Pittsburgh city line. As the state does not improve city streets, the city is responsible for the improvement of the other half of the road. But it seems unlikely that any city work will be attempted before next spring. Legislation will have to be passed and funds provided by council before the city can begin.

EDITOR, ITALIAN DEBATE ON MUSSOLINI'S REGIME

"Italy is in the grasp of a brutal tyranny, which exiles hundreds of her best citizens and strangles free speech," declared Dr. Vincenzo Nitti last night in a debate at the Y. M. & W. H. A.

"If Italy is in the grasp of a tyranny, she does not know it and is enjoying it," answered Col. S. S. McClure, who had the Fascist side of the debate.

Dr. Nitti, son of Italy's former premier, told how all parties except the Fascists had been suppressed, and how every newspaper that was not a Mussolini organ had been killed, with the result that prosperity had declined and happiness was a memory.

Col. McClure, famous editor, who had spent two years in Italy, insisted that the exiles were troublemakers sent "merely to a summer resort," and that Italy is both prosperous and efficient, being "well regimented." George Seibel, dramatic and literary editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, was chairman of the debate, and announced that he would not shirk the responsibility of a decision, but would reserve it for 10 years.

GRABS WOMAN'S PURSE, FLEES

A well-dressed young man snatched a purse containing $20 from Mrs. Artie Milbourne, 57, of 625 Allegheny avenue, last night, as she was on her way home in Allegheny avenue near Ridge avenue. In an effort to elude the thief she fell to the sidewalk, injuring her knee.

Attracted by the woman's screams, Dr. Albert G. Loomis, of 53 Clemensha avenue, chemist at the United States Bureau of Mines, who was driving by in his auto, and Richard Natts, of 619 Allegheny avenue, chased the fleeing robber in vain, police reported.

FLIER KILLED IN CRASH HONORED

Friends and fellow fliers crowded Flannery's funeral parlors, 374 South Negley avenue, early today to view the body of John J. ("Jack") Feery, who died Monday of injuries received Sunday in a crash at Bettis Field.

Officers and enlisted men in the Three Hundred Twenty-fourth Observation Squadron, of which Feery, a captain, commanded Flight B, formed an honorary escort to St. Lawrence's Catholic Church, Penn and Atlantic avenues, for solemn high mass. Burial will be at Hartford, Conn. A squadron of planes from Rodgers Field was formed to escort the funeral train from Pittsburgh.

Pallbearers, intimate friends of the dead airman, were Raymond M. Marlier, Robert A. Laedlein, William J. Austin, Louis T. Barry, Capt. T. S. Voss and Walter Chambers.

CANDIDATE ROGERS STARS ON AIR TONIGHT

EDDIE CANTOR will be the star of the Will Rogers-for-President radio rally to be broadcast over WJAS tonight at 10 o'clock. The entertainment will take the place of the regular Kolster hour and will portray the manner in which Rogers would apply showmanship to the conduct of government if he were elected.

Robert Benchley, humorist and critic, will be chairman of the rally. New songs bearing on the national campaign and upon Roger ' candidacy will be presented by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby, popular song writers.

This will be the third of a series of radio rallies in support of the rope-throwing candidate, who says he "chews to run" and scorns sex appeal in his effort to gain support for his ticket. Eddie Cantor and other theatrical friends of the Anti-Bunk Party candidate are expected to touch on Rogers' announcement that if elected he will do away with the office of Vice President, performing the duties of that office and c' President himself, thereby saving the government $15,000 a year.

Station KDKA, broadcasting from the William Penn Hotel and the studio of the Pioneer station, will present several attractive programs to night. At 6:15 o'clock a short recital will be given by Tom Baldridge, tenor; Ruth Grindle, soprano, and Helen Maschett, pianist, who will give excerpts from "Springtime."

The Red Arrow Quartet of the Pennsylvania Railroad will entertain the listeners of KDKA at 9:30 o'clock. The quartet has arranged a special program for their appearance before the microphone.

The Maytag Happiness program, broadcast through KDKA at 10 o'clock and presented by the Ramblers and soloists, includes the following selections: "Serenade," "If With All Your Hearts," "Every Little Movement," "I Heard You Go By," "Swing Song," "One Fleeting Hour" and "Italian Folk Songs."

The WCAE Gospel Song hour at 7 o'clock will feature Elsie Matz Bauman, soprano, and Lois Wiley, contralto. The program will consist of favorite hymns and old-time gospels.

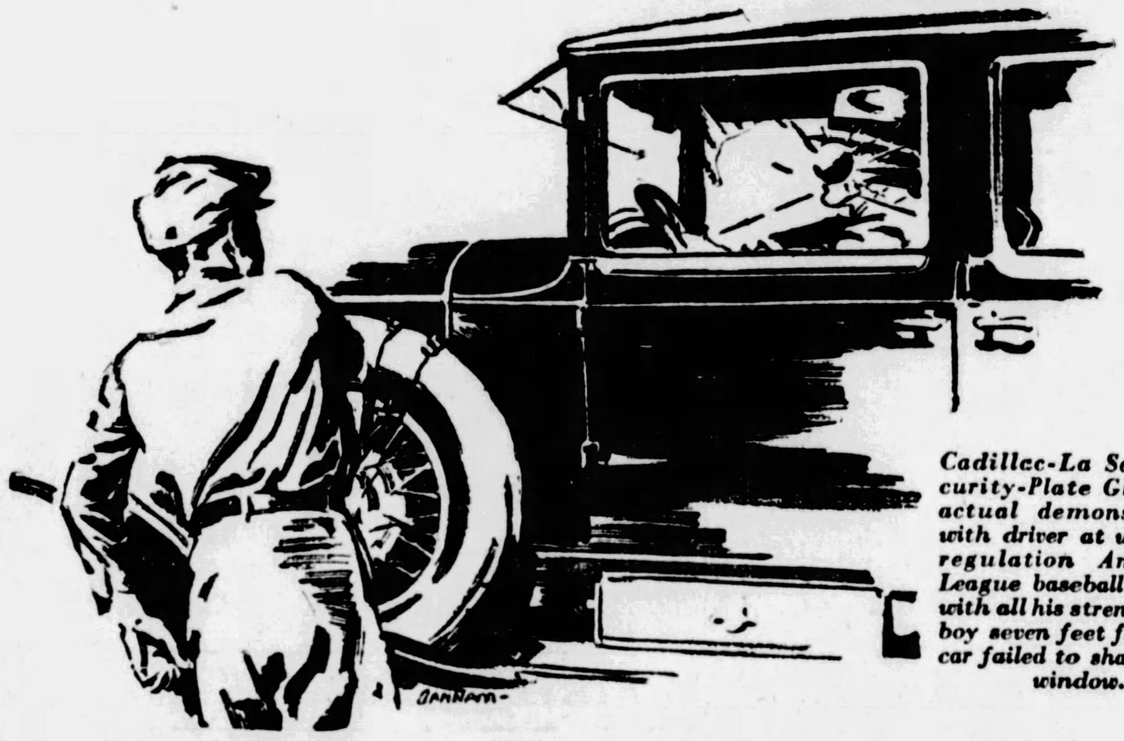
Protect Yourself and Your Family with Crystal-Clear Non-Shatterable

Security-Plate Glass



Cadillac-La Salle Security-Plate Glass—an actual demonstration with driver at wheel. A regulation American League baseball thrown with all his strength by a boy seven feet from the car failed to shatter the window.

IN THE new Cadillacs, La Salles and Fleetwoods there are revolutionary new safety features of vital importance in this day of high speed and congested streets and highways. Unquestionably, they make these cars the safest in the world.

There is no hazard of flying glass in case of accident. For all doors, windows and windshields are equipped with Cadillac-La Salle crystal-clear, non-shatterable Security-Plate Glass.

What does Security-Plate Glass mean?

It means that if the glass in a windshield, door or window of a new Cadillac or La Salle is struck by ball, stick or stone, or if one of these cars is in a collision, there is no danger of flying glass fragments. In other words, security-plate glass means greater protection for you and your family. Thus the subconscious fear of injury is removed—you ride or drive with your mind at ease.

But security-plate glass is by no means the only new safety feature in the new Cadillacs and La Salles. There are the new Cadillac designed Duplex-Mechanical four-wheel brakes. These brakes give much more positive, powerful braking action, but require amazingly little effort on the part of the driver.

And there is the Cadillac-La Salle Syncro-Mesh Silent-Shift transmission—a remarkable device that enables one to shift gears easily, instantly, without clashing, and that adds greatly to getaway in traffic.

You would gladly have paid extra for these new safety features in your present car could you have obtained them. But they are found only in the new Cadillacs and La Salles—and there is no extra charge for them.

LA SALLE $2295

The new La Salle is priced from $2295 to $2875, the new Cadillac from $3295 to $7000, all prices f. o. b. Detroit. The General Motors Time Payment Plan is a convenient way for you to enjoy all that Cadillac and La Salle offer, while you pay for the cars out of income. 696

RAID CLUBS, HOTEL

FLANIGAN MEN ARREST 4 IN SWOOPS

Following up his war with the city police, Alderman Thomas Flanigan sent constables on a raiding expedition in the downtown district yesterday and last night, visiting two clubs and a hotel. Four persons were arrested and liquor is said to have been seized in each of the places visited.

The places raided were the Traymore Hotel, William Penn way, the Order of Otters Club, 644 Penn avenue and the Nimrod Hunting and Fishing Club, 111 Ninth street. C. M. Houston and Paul Seldan were arrested as the proprietors of the Otter club, J. M. Walders as proprietor of the Nimrod club and Benny Schwartz as proprietor of the Traymore Hotel. All furnished bond for $1,000 for hearing before Alderman Flanigan.

Flanigan, alderman of the First ward, has allied himself with Alderman John J. Verona of the Third ward in Verona's fight against the city administration.

He hasn't actually found the fountain, but he is able, he says, to make an elixir that will keep people young—in fact, it will add 15 years to man's span of life. After 25 years' experimentation, he's able to make ordinary water "radio active" through use of radium.

SPROUL'S TALK ON HEALING WINS 95

Ninety-five persons professed Christianity last night at the service in Glory Barn, West Carson street, where Evangelist John W. Sproul has been preaching nightly. A score of others declared they had received relief from physical ills through the faith healing of the speaker.

Raymond Tuttle, of 812 Doolittle street, East Carnegie, raised his hands above his head last night for the first time, he said, in seven years. He said he had been paralyzed when a child.

Frederick Sink, of 1804 Concordia street, who declared he had been unable to stand for several years because of spinal trouble, stood on the platform.

Evangelist Sproul spoke on "Sickness and Sin" last night. He said, in part:

"Some say God sends sickness to keep His servants humble, that He gets glory out of the helpless invalidism of His children.

"Many deny that sickness comes from sin, that there are many outstanding saints who are great sufferers. Human experience, we are told, proves that much sickness does not come from sin.

"Today we have lost the sense of sin. Evil speaking and jealousy are sins in God's sight.

"Thoughtless people think of God as capricious, but He rules by certain fixed principles of justice. 'Shall not the judge of all the earth do right?' 'Justice and judgment are the foundations of Thy throne.'

"God reveals the law of cause and effect. We may not be able to trace out the cause of any sickness, but the cause is there.

"Sin, in some form in our lives, is the source of sickness. The Bible says that if you keep the covenant God will deliver you from all the diseases."

HOW, WHEN and WHY

Why drug the stomach when your blood cells control high blood pressure and most all chronic diseases?

How Blood Cell Protein Serum controls your health, your happiness, your bank account and your wealth, is by increasing the number of white cells (or leucocytes).

One Serum makes an optimist of the most skeptical.

One Serum revives hope in the most despondent sufferer.

One Serum brings a ray of sunshine into any blood stream infected.

One Serum makes new white blood cells, increasing the patient's own natural weapons against disease, chronic or acute.

One Serum accomplishes more real good than many patients expect or medicine can produce.

35,000 people have taken these Serums in Pittsburgh. If this one fact has been verified, there is no just reason for you to suffer from high or low blood pressure or any chronic disease.

One full meal a day is all a great many people need, while others require three or four. If we can tell you what your blood pressure is today from one drop of blood, or just how many white cells you have to govern and regulate your pressure, you should recognize that laws govern facts and you don't have to be misguided.

While you live in the cleanest and healthiest City in the United States and have fewer deaths per capita, one out of three die from complications of blood pressure. Senator Copeland's (former Health Commissioner of New York City) deduction is that one out of three die from this complication.

Why drug the stomach when your blood cells control High Blood Pressure and most all Chronic Diseases?

If you balance the blood stream and increase the Oxygen of the body, correcting faulty metabolism, you have quick relief, not only from pain but from all diseases affecting the blood stream. Think it over and take one. No Doctor charges. Patients pay only for the particular Serum the Doctor administers. Come on, you High Blood Pressure Men — get well and go back to work.

EXAMINATION OF BLOOD AND URINE FREE

One Serum gives relief in many cases. Patients pay for Serum only—No Doctor Charge.

We are successfully treating High Blood Pressure, Rheumatism, Asthma, Diabetes, Anemia, Neuritis, Nervous or Stomach Troubles, Debility, Kidney and Heart Trouble, Paralysis, Arthritis, Sclerosis, Blood and Skin Diseases and other ailments affecting the blood stream.

DEATH ROLL

Harry A. Wray.

Harry A. Wray, 63, a funeral director on the North Side for the past 35 years, died today in his home, 300 East North avenue. He was born in Pittsburgh and lived here all his life. Prominently identified with fraternal organizations, he was a well-known Mason, Shriner, Odd Fellow and member of Islam Grotto. He was also affiliated with Allegheny Lodge No. 339, B. P. O. Elks. Besides his widow, Mrs. Gertrude Speer Wray, he leaves two daughters, Mrs. Marie Simon and Mrs. Fred Frey, of Detroit; three sisters, Mrs. George Richards, of Detroit; Mrs. Melvin Palmer and Mrs. Sarah Charles, and one brother, Jack McGill, of Pittsburgh.

Frank B. Patton.

Frank Bennett Patton, 63, former vice president of the Pittsburgh Dry Goods Company, died today at his home, 5741 Solway street, after a brief illness. Mr. Patton was born in New Castle, but lived the greater part of his life in Pittsburgh. He was elected president of the National Dry Goods Association in 1925. He was an elder in the Sixth Presbyterian Church and treasurer of Benevolences. For many years he served as a trustee of the Coleman Home for Boys. He leaves his widow, Jane McElveen Patton; a daughter, Sarah and a son, Hugh.

Mrs. Mary Haas.

Mrs. Mary Lunz Haas, 75, a resident of the North Side for 59 years, died Monday in her home, 1830 Ley street. She was born in Bavaria, Germany, August 30, 1853, coming to this country at the age of 16 and settling on the North Side, where she had since resided. She was a member of the Most Holy Name Catholic Church. She leaves two sons, George and Raymond Haas, and six daughters, Mary, Rose, Frances, Anna and Mrs. Catherine Oberst, of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Hugh Jackson, of California.

Miss Elizabeth A. Marshall.

Funeral services for Miss Elizabeth Arthurs Marshall, 59, who died Monday at her home, Marshall avenue, Carnegie, were held today. Burial took place at Allegheny Cemetery. Miss Marshall was a lifelong resident of the Pittsburgh district. She was a member of the Twentieth Century Club, College Club of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh Association of Vassar Alumnae; Pittsburgh Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution; Alliance Francaise, Art Society and the Civic Club of Allegheny County.

Joseph B. Egley.

Joseph B. Egley, 50, died last night at his home, Gibsonia road, Wildwood. He was a member of Calvary Episcopal Church and of Lodge No. 11, Elks. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Josephine Egley; a son, Charles, of Louisiana; a daughter, Florence, of Pittsburgh; a brother, Charles, of Harmony, and a sister, Mrs. W. N. Ewing, of Pittsburgh.

VETS IN SESSION

DRYS PROTEST TO CAPITAL AGAINST FORNEY PARDON

A resolution declaring that a pardon for Alfred W. Forney, so-called slot machine king now serving a sentence in the county jail, would be "against the public interest," was adopted last night at a meeting of the county committee of the Prohibition party in the North Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church.

Forney, sentenced to jail after pleading guilty to conspiracy to violate the liquor law, has applied for executive clemency.

Copies of the resolution were telegraphed to Attorney General John G. Sargent and other officials at Washington.

INDUSTRIAL LENDERS TO ELECT TOMORROW

The regular monthly meeting of the Pittsburgh Industrial Lenders' Association will be held tomorrow at 6 p. m. in the Dutch Room of the Fort Pitt Hotel. Officers for the coming year will be elected.

NAMING HEAD HOLDS LEGION COHORTS

International News Service.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 10.—John Ewing, of Shreveport, La., today was believed leading the field in the race for national commander of the American Legion for the coming year. Caucuses by state delegations Tuesday night, from which newspapermen were barred, were understood to have shown a trend toward the Louisianan after Roy Hoffman, of Oklahoma, had shown great preconvention strength.

Besides Ewing and Hoffman, there are a number of other strong candidates who have not yet been eliminated from consideration. There is J. Monroe Johnson, of Marion, S. C., who was defeated by Howard P. Savage, of Illinois, at Philadelphia two years ago.

Johnson has a considerable following and is popular. So is Paul V. McNutt, of Bloomington, Ind., whose supporters were very active Tuesday during and after the big parade. Rufus R. Rand, of Minnesota, is developing some strength, as is Ralph O'Neil, of Topeka, Kan. Gen. Albert L. Cox, of Greenville, S. C., apparently is holding his strength. Others whose names have been prominently mentioned include O. L. Bodenhaimer, of Eldorado, Ark.; Col. E. M. Stayton, of Kansas City; Howard P. MacFarlane, of Florida, and R. J. Schneller, of Wisconsin.

Maj. Georges Scapini, blind veteran of the World War, was given one of the most enthusiastic ovations of the convention when he advanced to bring the greetings of the French veterans of the World War. Scapini, president of the Union of War Blind of France, and one of the leading barristers of Paris, after delivering messages from his own and other French veterans' organizations, as well as a very personal greeting from Gen. Gouraud, of France, paid tribute to the Legion unstintedly.

SMITH COLORED LEAGUE WILL MEET TOMORROW

The Al Smith Colored League of Allegheny County will meet in the Al Smith-for-President Club headquarters, 137 Seventh street, tomorrow evening, with Walter S. Buchanan, of Homewood, presiding. Addresses will be made by Attorneys T. B. Hamilton, B. B. McGinnis and Howard Devlin, and W. S. McNair, candidate for United States Senator.

Young Mother, Once Thin, Weak, Gains 5 Lbs. and New Strength

Don't Be "Skinny," Washed-Out and Unattractive

Gain Pounds This New, Quick Way

New YEAST and IRON builds weight quickly. Your own druggist guarantees results—or pay nothing

"I gained 5 lbs. while taking IRONIZED YEAST. That means quite a bit, as my folks are both thin. What I prize most is the difference in the way I feel and the pep I have. Before I took IRONIZED YEAST I had to hire a girl to help me with any hard work. But now I do all my housecleaning alone and help my mother too." Mrs. George Decker

Why Yeast and Iron Works So Quickly!

People gain 5 to 15 pounds in a few weeks. Skinny limbs round into chubby curves. Pimply skin clears up. Tired feeling vanishes.

Only when Yeast is IRONIZED is it more effective—for Iron is needed to bring out the weight-building and strengthening values of Yeast. Pleasant tablets. Never cause gas or bloating. Safe for everybody.

Try It on "Money-Back" Offer

Go to any druggist today and get a full size treatment of IRONIZED YEAST. If after this generous trial you are not delighted with effects, your money back instantly.

CAUTION! While the amazing health-building value of IRONIZED YEAST tablets has been positively demonstrated in cases of lack of energy, indigestion, constipation, skin eruptions, poor complexion and generally weakened condition IRONIZED YEAST should not be used by anyone who OBJECTS to gaining weight.—© I. What IRONIZED YEAST has done for all these folks it should certainly do for you. Take advantage of our generous trial offer. If not delighted, get your money back.

Didn't Put Much Stock in It Till He Gained 10 Lbs. in 3 Weeks

"My health began to fail. Never put much stock in advertisements till I tried IRONIZED YEAST. Gained 10 lbs. in 3 weeks and continued till I weighed what I should." — K. M. Reavick, Harrisville, Pa.

Gained 11 Lbs. and More Pep

"Was thin and rundown. Tried IRONIZED YEAST and gained 11 lbs. Now have more pep and vitality than I have had for years."—Mrs. J. L. Reed, Mt. Union, Pa.

Rundown, Thin, Gains 7 Lbs.

"Was so rundown and thin didn't think anything would put flesh on me. But took IRONIZED YEAST and have gained 7 lbs. Sleep better, eat better and am not so nervous."—Mrs. J. L. Gager, Cold Springs, Pa.

"I am so happy that the last pimple is gone—"

WITHOUT this handicap, there returns the very natural confidence, joy and cherished pride of possessing a clear skin.

Men and women both justly covet admiration, and you can expect such satisfaction only if you are happy in a clear unblemished skin.

The sure way to reach this state is through the blood.

Red blood cells are Nature's elements for building and sustaining the body.

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there can be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful healthy women.

—purely vegetable

You know a clear skin comes from within. Correct the cause—through the blood—and pimples, boils, eczema and that sallow complexion will disappear.

Thousands have regained their strength and charm by taking a few bottles of S. S. S.—Nature's own tonic for restoring the appetite—building strength—and clearing the body of so-called skin troubles.

All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Get the larger size. It is more economical.

SUN-TELEGRAPH PICTURE FINDS WOMAN

Miss Mary McKnight, 37, of R. D., Leechburg, was found yesterday at Georgetown, not far from her home, after having been missing since Saturday night. Persons recognizing her from a picture published in the Sun-Telegraph notified her relatives, who took the woman home.

Becoming confused, Miss McKnight lost her way in the woods and subsisted on apples and berries during the three days she was missing. Relatives said she apparently was unharmed by the exposure and lack of food.

ALLEGHENY SCOUTS DRIVE FOR $100,000

Much interest is being manifested in the Scout daddies' campaign of Allegheny County Council, West. Boy Scouts of America, which is being carried on during October to raise $100,000. The money will be used in widening the scope of the Scout movement. The first reports on the sums obtained will be made next Monday at a general meeting of members of the board of directors in Kaufmann's dining room. On Saturday, 200 Scouts in uniform will call on approximately 5,000 residents of the county to leave literature explaining the work and to make a personal appeal for funds. John M. Phillips is general chairman of the campaign.

HARVEY GAUL TO OPEN WESTINGHOUSE SERIES

LIBERTY AND OLIVER AVENUES—CALL ATLANTIC 6200

Six Highlights

—from our coat department, showing a wide diversity of styles. Each is numbered among the smartest of its type and is much in demand.

Chinchilla Coats

Jonasson Chinchillas are the most popular sports coat success of the season. Youthful, spirited and finely tailored. An ideal coat for motoring, campus wear or to substitute for your dressy coat.

Six different models of Navy Blue Chinchilla to choose from. Plaid wool lining with satin shoulder lining, guaranteed for the life of the coat. Sizes 14 to 20.

Leather Jackets
$19.75

Plenty of swank and swagger to these capeskin jackets, which combine smartly with woolen skirts. Deep pockets, button closely around the neck and come in red, green, blue, brown and black. Plaid wool lining to match.

Long Leather Coats of fine capeskin with suede cloth and other wool fabric linings in tan, green, blue and black. $29.75 to $59.75.

Bokhara Coats
$35

Among the coats without fur, these jaunty little Bokhara models stand out prominently. The richness of the fabric alone suffices, but when combined with a fur scarf an extremely dressy and happy result is achieved.

Model pictured at $35 comes in black. Others up to $89.75. Hip length Bokhara Coatees in black or tan from $29.75 to $49.75.

—Third Floor—

Velvet Coats
$59.75

Velveteen and Velvet are numbered among the most formal modes. It is here presented in a series of models ranging in price from furless styles at $29.75 to gorgeously trimmed creations at $229.

The model pictured is of Russka Green Velvet with shawl collar, cuffs and border of American Opossum in a harmonizing light tone. $59.75

By Martial Armand
$79.75

The above coat is a replica of one of this celebrated designer's most successful models. It is of Forest Green Broadcloth and shows the popular side flare to excellent advantage. Collar and cuffs of Australian Opossum.

This is only one example of many replicas of imported successes to be found in our popular priced groups at $59.75, $69.75 and $79.75.

Civet Cat Trimming
$95

Natural Civet Cat trimming is employed on many of the most distinguished models. Its colorful black and white tones form a rich harmony when used with black, green or wine shades in the season's smooth surfaced fabrics.

The model pictured above is of Black Norma with border, cuffs and deep Paquin shawl collar of Natural Civet Cat. $95.

TIMBER TO PAY FOR FOREST BONDS

Supporters of at least one of the bond issues to be voted upon at the election November 6, claim that it is a good investment from a financial point of view alone for the citizens of Pennsylvania.

That proposal is the $25,000,000 forest bond issue, which will be the third proposed constitutional amendment on the ballot.

"Future generations will not be burdened by the forest bond issue for the timber produced on the land will more than meet the bonded indebtedness," reads a statement issued by the Pennsylvania Forestry Association, of which Henry S. Drinker of Philadelphia is president.

FORESEES PROFIT

"When the land becomes fully-productive, which should be within 50 years, it will yield a net income above all maintenance charges of $2.50 to $4 an acre."

Should the $25,000,000 forest issue be approved, the cost of any land bought by the state would be limited under the cat of 1915 to $10 an acre. The average cost per acre of the 1,150,000 acres now in the state forests was $2.26.

Opponents of the proposed issue have voiced the objection that so large a sum is not needed for the purpose. Its supporters admit that the entire amount will not be spent immediately but that the bonds will be sold as funds are actually needed to pay for land.

IMPORT COST OF WOOD

The $25,000,000 is not a large sum, friends of the proposed issue claim, when it is remembered that Pennsylvania now imports 84 per cent of the lumber used in the state.

The freight bill on this imported lumber, according to the statement of the Forestry association, is about $25,000,000 annually.

"If the forests of Pennsylvania are built up carefully and handled properly, they can produce practically all the wood needed within the state," reads the statement.

SOCIALIST CHIEF TO SPEAK HERE

Imperialism, armament, the coal tragedy, the power lobby and civil liberty are the real issues of the campaign, with prohibition only a side issue, according to Dr. Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, who will address a mass meeting in Carnegie Music Hall, Schenley Park, tomorrow night.

Dr. W. J. Van Essen, chairman of the Socialist County Committee, and candidate for United States Senator, announced today that tickets of admission may be secured at Socialist headquarters, 308 Fifth Avenue Arcade.

Dr. Thomas will address the Liberal Club of the University of Pittsburgh tomorrow afternoon.

KEYSTONE ATHLETIC CLUB TO OPEN JAN. 1

With the exterior of the building completed, and the contract let for the decoration and furnishing of the interior, plans are going forward for the grand opening of the new 21-story home of the Keystone Athletic Club at Wood street and the Boulevard of the Allies, the date of which is set for January 1.

The decoration and furnishing of the interior is to begin within the next few weeks, it is announced from the club's business headquarters, 206 Westinghouse Building.

ADS DUE TONIGHT

SECOND PERIOD OF ZAIN TEST EXPIRING

Writers of Zain advertisements who aspire to win the $100 cash prize for the second of the weekly periods into which the test is divided should have their ads in the office of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph not later than midnight tonight. Ads coming in after that hour will be automatically entered for the third period, and so on.

There are still nearly 1,000 regular prizes to be won, including the grand prize of $1,000 in cash and five cash prizes of $100 each. In addition to the prizes totaling in value $15,000, which the Sun-Telegraph is giving for the best ads written by amateurs, many of the 39 local business concerns participating in the project, whose products or services must be the subject of the ads, are offering special prizes.

NEW PRIZES OFFERED

Several additions to the list of special prizes are announced today. The Federal Tobacco Company will give one box of Arco Specials (stogies) to each of the writers of the five best ads about their product each period.

The Haller Baking Company offers a book of 10 tickets for Haller's Special Family Bread for each of the five best ads each period—these to be exclusive of the five newspaper winners.

The Haller Baking Company has awarded as special prizes a book of 10 tickets for Haller's Special Family Bread to each of the following contestants of the first period:

H. A. McCreanor, 175 Lloyd avenue, Edgewood.

T. R. Goldsborough, 658 Lenox avenue, Wilkinsburg.

J. A. he, 29 Wheeler avenue, Ingram.

Mrs. H. E. Culin, 417 Ashland avenue, Mt. Lebanon

F. H. Fritts, 316 Laurel street, Edgewood.

Through a regrettable error the prize-winning advertisement for the Yellow Cab Company, published in the Sun-Telegraph Monday, was credited to Mrs. Jack Mazza, 1004 Vickroy street. The author of the Yellow Cab ad was Miss Mary E. Conner, of Hotel Chatham, as was stated in the Sun-Telegraph Sunday. Mrs. Mazza wrote one of the winning ads about the Glick Auto Supply Company.

READ RULES CAREFULLY

Elsewhere on this page you will find the rules for the Zain Ad-Test and a list of the 39 concerns about whom the ads must be written. To be eligible for the grand prize of $1,000 you must write an ad about each of the 39 some time during the campaign.

Remember, you do not have to know anything about the technical side of advertisement writing to win a prize. Professional ad writers and newspaper employes are barred. It is the idea that counts.

The best way to get ideas for ads is to visit the stores or patronize the companies about which the ads are to be written. It is helpful to read their advertisements, too.

When you come to write about Pickering's, furniture dealers at Tenth street and Penn avenue, you will recall, of course, the service they render young people just going to housekeeping in furnishing their homes for them on credit. "Your credit is good" is an old Pickering slogan. Pickering's carries a great variety of furniture at moderate prices.

TEST WARES FOR IDEAS

Go to C. Reizenstein & Sons, 625 Liberty avenue, "Pittsburgh's Oldest Gift Shop with the Newest Gift Things," for china and glassware. The thing that will most impress you in Reizenstein's ware is the exquisite beauty of the pieces. Of course, there is sturdy china and glassware for everyday use; but it is none the less beautiful on that account.

Max Azen the Furrier, 705 Penn avenue, has been in business for more than 25 years. He went into business to stay, and consequently built upon a solid foundation—a foundation of attractive, reliable goods, honestly priced. That policy has won customers and held them. The quality of Azen's furs is such that one who has purchased there will return when furs are again required.

Several generations of Pennsylvanians have bought shoes at Laird's, 622 Liberty avenue and 215 Oliver avenue. A new generation is now acquiring its footwear there. Laird's shoes for children please the youngsters and satisfy their mothers. Comfort, durability and good appearance are combined in them. Laird's shoes for men and women are equaly satisfactory.

Write each ad on a separate sheet of paper, which should be at least as large as a postal card, and preferably commercial letter size. Write your name and address on the back of each sheet, and also on the flap of the envelope in which you mail them. SEND THE ADS TO THE ZAIN AD-WRITING TEST, CARE OF THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH, PITTSBURGH, PA.

George Sidney Going Abroad To Be Only American Actor In "The Five Frankfurters"

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1928, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 10.

GEORGE SIDNEY will be the only actor to accompany Director William Kraft to Germany for the filming of Universal's photoplay, "The Five Frankfurthers." A cameraman and an assistant director will be provided in the entourage, but the remainder of the histrionic talent will be provided by players in the Fatherland. The lucky boys who get the trip are Jack Foley, assistant to Director Kraft, and Al Jones, who wil ldo the shooting. Arrangements have already been made for the services of some very capable players who are to be loaned by the great studios located in and near Berlin. The story, as you know, has nothing to do with "Weinies," but concerns itself with a tale more or less based on the romantic careers of members of the famous Rothschild family.

Director Raoul Walsh is recuperating from injuries sustained in a motor accident which threatened the loss of one of his eyes. According to Walsh the mishap occurred when a jackrabbit, startled by the glare of his headlights, leaped through the windshield on the car and cut the director with flying glass. Believe it or not, you've gotta give Raoul credit for originality. The accident has caused a shift in plans regarding the production of "In Old Arizona," the new title for "A Caballero's Way." Walsh was to direct this Fox movietone picture, and also agreed to enact the role of a bandit chieftain in the film. Now they have put Director Irving Cumming in charge of Walsh's megaphone, and Warner Baxter will play the part Walsh was to have had. Inadvertently I announced that Baxter was to play opposite Anna Q. Nilsson. In reality, Anna's hero will be Wallace MacDonald. My error.

Hollywood has done its share of mourning thus far in October. We had scarcely recovered from the shock of Arnold Kent's tragic death, when the cinema city was again gloomed over by the news of George Beban's passing. Beban succumbed to injuries received when he was tossed from a horse. He will be missed by many friends, and the thousands whom he entertained on both stage and screen.

Mal St. Clair has been selected to direct Richard Dix and Florence Vidor in "Unconquered," which is the title of the picture in which Richard will be starred following the completion of "Redskins." This Indian epic is being made with both sound and color. A black and white version also is being made. The prohibitive cost of color limits the director to making but one "take" of each sequence in color.

Picture producers are running into difficulty regarding the acquisition of stage plays. Not only do theatrical producers seem to be demanding exorbitant prices for screen rights, but additional complications arise relative to dialog rights. The six plays purchased for First National by Al Rockett are cases in point. The screen rights to the action of these plays have been secured. But negotiations are still being carried on for the words which accompany the action. Makers of audible pictures deserve all the popularity and profit accruing from their productions. It isn't as easy as it looks.

Marie Prevost had scarcely arrived from her location trip with "The Exodus" company when Columbia signed her to star in "College Croquette," with either James Murray or Ben Lyon—probably Murray—as her leading man. By the time Marie completes this one, it is probable that she will move her make-up box over to the Lasky lot, for overures have already been made for her services in Emil Jannings' next, "Ellis Island." There also is a possibility that she will appear in Vilma Banky's picture. In addition to these opportunities the hit of "The Godless Girl" is being sought by Columbia for another picture, "The New Generation," a Fanny Hurst yarn, in which Buster Collier, and perhaps George Sidney, will appear. Sidney's engagement depends upon whether or not he can fit the picture before his European trip for "The Five Frankfurthers."

Ralph Block returned to town in time to make a change in the cast of "Leathernecks" the picture in which Bill Boyd, Bob Armstrong and Alan Hale portray American Marines. The girl role, the only one in the film, was first supposed to be played by Lina Basquette. Then Nina Quartero, whom James Cruze discovered in "The Red Mark," was substituted. But Block had his own ideas about the part, and now Dione Ellis has been definitely signed for the role. Dione used to be under contract to Fox, and more recently she appeared in a picture with Colleen Moore.

Ruth Catterton, who has been playing from picture to picture at Paramount, has been signed to a long term contract. She is all set for the big role in the Paramount talkie, "A Half Hour," to be made by William C. De Mille. At first it looked as though this would keep her out of "Drums of Oude." But now it appears that the time schedule has been so arranged that she will appear in both photoplays.

CAMERA RECORDS :-: INTERESTING :-: BITS OF FILMLAND

John Mack Brown rehearses a love scene with Norma Shearer while each read the script for a talkie sequence. This for "The Little Angel," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture.

Esther Ralston and the plunder of a trip to Honolulu, including leis and a pup, half Eskimo, half Hawaiian meat hound.

Isabel Keith, Ann Lewis, Dorothy Mathews, Mayry Mayo, Gwen Lee and Edwina Booth take voice tests for part of Nina T., mysterious white girl in "Trader Horn."

They're all tow-heads and W. S. Van Dyke just has to have a blonde to take with him to the Congo, where the story will be filmed with sound and vocal effects.

FUNDS SOLICITED AT THEATER DOORS

Salvation Army workers are collecting funds today in the principal theaters in connection with the Army's home service fund campaign. Workers are stationed in the lobbies of the Harris, Sheridan Square, Davis, Alvin, Pitt, Nixon, Grand, Stanley, Loew's Penn and Loew's Aldine. Tomorrow they will be at the Olympic and Ritz. The present home service fund campaign is for $116,500, the amount needed to enable the Army to continue its activities during the next 12 months.

PLAY BY SHAW NEXT WEEK

"Arms and the Man," the Shaw satire which the Theater Guild is to present in the Nixon, beginning next Monday night, as its fourth play of the season here, is one of the best liked Shaw plays today. Its story is the basis of the operetta, "The Chocolate Soldier."

"The Skull," mystery comedy which opened the season in the Pitt Monday night, has all its action in an abandoned church. There will be matinees tomorrow and Saturday. The engagement is for one week only.

There is a matinee performance of "Blossom Time" in the Alvin this afternoon. The operetta is to remain for one week only, closing Saturday night.

DANCING AT SANDERS FRIDAY, SATURDAY

The Terrace Garden ballroom, Sanders Inn, Freeport highway, Aspinwall, is being redecorated for the weekly dances Friday and Saturday nights. Tyson's Melody Lane Orchestra is to play for the dancing.

REV. G. L. ROTH ELECTED REFORMED SYNOD HEAD

GREENVILLE, Pa., Oct. 10.—The Rev. George L. Roth, of Somerset, was elected president of the Pittsburgh Synod, Reformed Church in the United States, at the opening session of the annual meeting here.

Business sessions were mainly devoted to committee reports.

EMSWORTH REPUBLICAN MEET TOMORROW NIGHT

A Hoover-Curtis rally tomorrow evening in Emsworth Public School auditorium is being arranged by the Republican committee men and women. The speakers will be Miss Suzanne Beatty, an attorney at the Allegheny County Bar, and Congressman Stephen G. Porter. Burgess Alex Stewart will be chairman.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

STEPHEN'S WEALTH

By RICHARD SWARINGTON

"BRENT!" said Stephen Leadwell sharply, as his lank height filled the doorway of his shack of an office on the lot where he was building the town's new $100,000 school house. "Do you know that all but four of our brick masons have quit?" he was pale under his tan.

"They have?" Brent, the timekeeper, looked up from the desk. There was an odd flicker in his too-pale blue eyes, quickly hidden. "When?"

"Yesterday, I guess." Stephen came into the room and stared at the other until presently Brent's eyes shifted toward the door. "They didn't show up this morning. I've just learned that they're working on the new bank building downtown."

"But why? I thought they had plenty of men on that job."

"So did I." Stephen's dry tone was a little grim. "But Tom Boyle told me they were offered 10 cents more per hour. Ten cents!" He paused a moment, and added heavily: "I'd like to know why you were so chummy with several of them, yesterday morning!"

"Now, Steve—"

"And you're the one," catalogued Stephen, "who worked out the estimate on which I based my bid for the contract. You made that error in the price on steel beams and lath—a pretty costly error for me! You ordered that cement which was miss-sent and tied us up a week by arriving late! This is one more thing to pile up expenses and bring nearer the time when I'll have to pay a penalty for delay!"

"Now see here; do you mean to insinuate—"

"If I knew enough to insinuate, I'd know enough to kick you out! As it is, you may walk! And don't come back!"

"Aw, Steve, I—"

"Get out!" Stephen rasped; and Andrew Brent rose hurriedly. Stephen followed him to the door; stood dourly watching the man's plump legs pick a quick but careful way among the debris that strewed the ground.

The watcher emitted a grunt of surprise as a courtly sedan drew up to the curb. Even at that distance, the girl at the wheel appeared almost flamboyantly beautiful in her high blonde coloring. Her companion alighted. He was a fine, sturdy figure, and his neat gray suit was tailored to hide the fact that he verged on plumpness. Peter Towne was a man of consequence.

Stephen watched him stride forward to meet Andrew Brent, and the two paused for an apparently casual exchange of words. Then Brent went on. Towne returned to the car and held its door open. Claire Fairley hesitated a moment, glancing towards the office, then stepped out.

The two were of virtually the same height. The girl matched the strides of her companion easily, her clinging short skirt showing the long exquisite beauty of her legs. An usually handsome couple.

"Hello, Leadwell!" Peter Towne greeted Stephen, who nodded. Stephen's eyes were intent on the girl's face, their look curiously earnest. She also nodded, smiling at him faintly.

"You don't seem to be doing much today." Peter Towne's gaze swept the scene of operations appraisingly.

"No." Stephen stepped back, jerking his head in invitation. They followed him into the office. "Most of my men are working at the bank."

"The bank?" Claire Fairley asked suddenly. "Your bank, Pete?"

Towne nodded. For a split second a faint, sardonic smile twitched his lips. "Did you know I own most of that bank, Leadwell?"

"Well, I thought so. I didn't try to hold the men by meeting the raise they were offered. My limit wouldn't go much beyond that."

"I hope you won't be seriously delayed." Towne's suave tone said plainly that he hoped the opposite. "You know, your contract includes a penalty for every week's delay after the specified date of completion."

Stephen nodded grimly. "And I also know that you are one of the school commissioners, and will see that the penalty is enforced. Brent's mistakes have ruined my chance of making a profit on this job; but I'll finish it for you—if I have to mortgage my last stick of equipment!"

"Brent's mistakes?" Claire Fairley looked at the man beside her with eyes curiously searching. "Peter, did you hire Brent to make those mistakes, any of them?"

Towne's mask of levity slipped. "Claire, I'd do anything to win you!" he said; and there was nothing funny about the man's stark, tragic sincerity. "I'll even tell the truth. Brent's a toad, of course, but even toads may be useful. No doubt I did wrong. But can't you see I had to do anything that might keep Leadwell from taking you away from me—anything. Well—"

The girl's look stopped him. It had pity in it. She turned on Stephen speculative eyes, waiting.

"Claire," said Stephen painfully, "when this is finished, I'll be penniless, and probably in debt!"

But Towne's long breath of hope was checked in its drawing. The look in Claire's face changed it into a long, long sigh.

"What of that?" In a step the girl was by Stephen's side, touching his arm. "Can't you see it doesn't matter whether you have anything or not? I've been trying to decide between you, and now I know—I know!"

Stephen's wonder was slow in growing into belief. It is hard to understand how a man can look humble and exultant at the same time, but Stephen did. Yet the glance he gave Towne was grave with pity.

"Man, you can't break me now!" he cried softly. "Why, I'm so rich in happines, I wish I could give you part—honestly I do!"

JURY CONVICTS MISS MOBILE

MEDIA, Pa., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Mrs. Vivian McDowell Page was found guilty of larceny of a watch and chain and cigar lighter by a jury here yesterday, but sentence was deferred pending motion for a new trial.

Mrs. Page, who was "Miss Mobile" in the Atlantic City pageant in 1926, was acquitted by the same jury of charges of larceny of $180 from a hotel room in Chester.

Several months ago Mrs. Page was acquitted in an arson case in which she was accused of having set fire to an apartment house from which she had been requested to move because of an unpaid bill.

Denies Compelling Mate to Sleep On Ground

Mrs. Mary A. Blacksmith, Millvale, has filed an answer in Common Pleas Court denying that she forced her husband out of the house to sleep on the ground, as he alleged in his libel in divorce filed against her recently.

Mrs. Blacksmith charges her husband got drunk four to six weeks at a stretch and says that once she had to lock him out because he had smashed the furniture, while under the influence of liquor. When this trouble occurred the couple, she said, then were living at 141 Lincoln avenue, Millvale.

WILHELMINA COYLE

Miss Wilhelmina Coyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dickson Kearns Coyle, Wallingford street, has gone back for the year to the Westover School, where she is studying.

USUALLY in the early fall a list of debutantes is announced and within a few weeks several names are withdrawn because some girls decide to go on to school or others to study abroad a year before "coming out." So by the time the season has started the list of buds is rather abbreviated. This year several girls did decide not to come out this season, but nevertheless the list of debbies has grown, and now there are 20 young girls who will make their bow this season. By November there may be several more.

The newest addition to the bouquet of buds for this season is Louise Latimer Reed, daughter of the W. Edgar Reeds, of Fifth and Amberson avenues. Louise, if I remember rightly, was to have come out last season, but decided at the last minute to go abroad.

Her mother will present her at a tea on Saturday, December 15, in the family home.

AND while I'm talking about debutantes, I want to mention the luncheon Miss Ethel and Miss Abby Christy of Sewickley are giving today in the Allegheny Country Club. There are covers for 60. And the guest of honor is Virginia Willock, debutante daughter of the Frank Scott Willocks.

FOR the remainder of the week and on Monday, the attention of the social world will swerve from the debutante to a popular fall bride, Martha Brooks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Faber Brooks, who will wed Alexander Laughlin Robinson, son of the William Christopher Robinsons, on Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Shields Presbyterian Church.

I've already mentioned that Eleanor McCargo and Mary Oliver, both bridesmaids, will entertain. On Saturday night Mrs. L. Halsey Williams, of Shields, Martha's grandmother, will give a dinner for Martha and the bridal party.

On Monday Lillian Rose, another bridesmaid, will give a wedding breakfast in the Allegheny Country Club.

TO go back for a moment to the subject of debutantes, I've heard of still another party. Mrs. Thomas Evans and her daughter, Katherine Ann, of Wellesley avenue, will be the hostesses, giving a buffet luncheon October 17 in the Twentieth Century Club. Their guests of honor will be Oliveretta Sutton, daughter of Mrs. Stansbury Sutton, of the Alder Court Apartments, whose debut is set for Thanksgiving Day, and Katherine McKibbin Schley, who will be introduced at a tea to be given November 7 in the Hotel Schenley by her grandmother, Mrs. Chambers McKibbin.

MISS LOUISE THOMPSON WILSON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Wilson, of Trenton avenue, Wilkinsburg, has chosen Saturday, October 20, as the date for her marriage to John MacDowell Matthews IV, son of Mr. and Mrs. John MacDowell Matthews, of Hillsboro, O. The ceremony will be performed that morning at 11 o'clock in the Rittenhouse by the Rev. Dr. James D. Rankin, of the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary, with only the families and a few friends in attendance. Mrs. Herbert Paul Canerdy, of Philadelphia, will be her sister's matron of honor and William E. FISHER HITS DEMOCRATS

WARNS VOTERS PLATFORM UNSAFE

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Declaring that the history of the Democratic party had shown that it could not be relied upon to handle the tariff question so as to produce the highest prosperity for industry and labor, Gov. John S. Fisher last night opened the Republican campaign in Philadelphia in a speech to the Union League.

His address was carried to millions of radio listeners.

In the audience were Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury; W. L. Mellon, former Republican state chairman; R. B. Mellon, Pittsburgh banker; United States Senator David A. Reed; Auditor General Edward Martin, chairman of the State Republican Committee; Samuel Lewis, State Treasurer; E. T. Stotesbury, Philadelphia banker; W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and Republican national committeeman, and Mayor Harry A. Mackey, of Philadelphia.

Dr. Hubert Work, national chairman of the Republican party, was unable to attend.

CHARGES FALSE ISSUES

Gov. Fisher, urging the election of Herbert Hoover, assailed the Democrats for sponsoring "false issues." He questioned the sincerity of their tariff plank and warned against the invasion of foreign-made products.

The situation had become so grave, he said, that the present tariff schedules must be raised to give the American manufacturer adequate protection from foreign importations, which have increased until "the volume of imports is now as large as in the final year of the Democratic non-protective Simmons-Underwood act."

MATE VANISHED, WIFE SAYS IN DIVORCE SUIT

Her husband, Dr. Bingham Boyce, just vanished, Helen J. Boyce, 5720 Darlington road, clerk in the Magee Hospital testified yesterday in her divorce suit before Judge T. J. Ford. Married in Wellsburg, W. Va., June 6, 1926, while she was still a nurse, Mrs. Boyce testified they resided at her home in Bridgeville for a time and then moved to Pittsburgh. In 1926 her husband left and she has not heard from him since.

How To Be Beautiful by Maria Jeritza

The Thrilling Thirties

MARIA JERITZA

HOW hard it is to realize that a century ago, an unmarried young woman of 25 was a hopeless old maid. At 30, married or unmarried, a woman was "on the shelf," so far as youthful charm was concerned, while at 40 she donned a lace cap and resigned herself to an old age spent knitting in the chimney corner.

Today, every up-to-date girl looks forward to the thrilling thirties as a period of poise, charm and joy of living.

"No woman can achieve charm younger than 30," declares Count Luza de Luza, noted European fashion artist. "Smartness is a process. It requires time and years of practice. . . The European woman does not try to look like a beauty. She prefers to look interesting, chic and smart."

It is true that at 30 the average woman has found herself. She no longer tries to imitate, with the aid of makeup, the complexion and features of a doll baby. She realizes that scarlet lips against pasty white complexion are grotesque. She uses, if she is wise and cosmopolitan, very little makeup indeed, and seeks to express her own individuality, as well as fashion, in her dress. She has begun to realize that beauty is of the mind and soul and that physical loveliness rests on health of mind and body. Applying this principle to her daily life, she flowers into a bloom of mental and physical charm comparable only to the beauty of the Greek women when Greece was in her prime.

Thirty is an ideal age to marry, for at 30 a woman has grown up mentally and physically and knows the kind of man who will make her happy and round out her life successfully. Modern women, wedding in their late twenties or early thirties, often have vigorous families of children and stay young with them. A certain distinguished physician has fixed on 30 as the perfect age for a woman to marry.

Of course, not all women find their thirties thrilling. It is quite possible to take to the rocking-chair, munch chocolates and decide you are out of the race. But if you prefer to go on living, instead of merely existing, you with keep active mentally and physically, work enthusiastically, eat moderately, and exercise sufficiently to frighten away fat cells and inspire restful sleep. When you feel well and happy, the chances are you also look well.

A woman in her thirties should walk, ride, golf, swim and dance when the opportunity presents itself. She should also tune in for the morning radio physical culture drill or else practice circulation-stimulating exercises like the following each morning before her bath:

Sit on the floor with your legs wide apart, stretched out straight. Relax the muscles of your body and roll it forward in a semi-circle from your hips, letting your outstretched hands slide along the floor. Return to sitting position. Repeat this movement 12 times to the left, 12 to the right.

Do not let yourself slump just because you have passed the flapper period of early girlhood. Every age has its charm. And the thirties are thrilling, lovely, and crowned with romance for the woman who keeps herself feeling and looking her best.

Kit fox, marmink, caracul, ringtail, skunk, opossum, Persian lamb, krimmer, fox, fitch, beaver, wolf.

The first requisite for Winter smartness is a smart coat—and the first requisite for a smart coat is the lavish use of furs. Fine furs. A shawl collar that extends entirely down the front of the coat—and perhaps swirls, border-fashion, about the hem. A Paquin collar with pointed back. A pouch collar, framing the face in flattering fashion. Cuffs, too, are a distinguishing feature—deep pointed ones, spiral cuffs, bell cuffs, muff cuffs.

You may choose beige coats with black fur—with brown fur. You may choose black coats with light brown furs—or you may match the color of fabric and fur.

Many of the new coats have a slight flare that is particularly interesting. And much is being done to give slenderizing effects through diagonal tucking and slot seaming. Black, tan, brown, blue, red, green.

MAN KILLED

Mrs. Arbuckle, 32, 1207 Allegheny avenue, was injured and her husband, Ralph, 40, killed, when their automobile was hit by a Butler interurban street car in East Ohio street. Cora Arbuckle, sister of the dead man, also was hurt.

PGH. HELPS TO TURN TIDE TO G.O.P.

Herbert Hoover has finally overtaken Gov. Alfred E. Smith in the city vote of Pennsylvania gathered by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in its straw vote canvass of the state.

Although Gov. Smith has not enjoyed a majority in the count for each of the five largest cities of the commonwealth, he has maintained a lead in the aggregate vote from Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Scranton, Reading and Erie since the poll was started.

Before today the Democratic candidate's urban lead had been reduced to the slim figure of seven. The latest returns from the cities snatch away the precarious hold of Smith and put Hoover into the lead by a majority of 128. The totals for the cities are now: Hoover, 14,614, 8,824 men and 5,790 women; Smith, 14,486, 9,390 men and 5,096 women.

Pittsburgh voters contributed to the switch by giving Hoover an ordinary lead in the day's returns. Philadelphia also favored Hoover over Smith. The return of ballots in the poll apparently has been stimulated by the final day of registration Saturday. The volume has been increasing daily.

Hoover also won by a wide margin in the ballots from rural counties and captured a fair majority in the suburban vote, increasing his lead over Smith in the state to 15,682, with 74,346 ballots counted.

The latest totals in the Pennsylvania poll, part of the nation-wide canvass by the Hearst papers, are: Hoover, 45,014, 36,117 men and 8,987 women; Smith, 29,322, 22,772 men and 6,550 women. This vote in 1924 was divided, 50,643 men and 10,041 women; Davis, 8,307, 7,007 men and 1,300 women; LaFollette, 4,691; not voting, 10,705.

VICTORS IN 'HALF-WIVES' ESSAY CONTEST NAMED

Announcement is made today of the winners of the 40 prizes offered by The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph for the best essays submitted on the question, "Can a woman successfully pursue a business or professional career and at the same time manage her home properly and do justice to her family?"

The question was raised by the serial novel "Half Wives," which recently ran in this paper, and provoked widespread discussion.

The competition aroused widespread interest. Hundreds of essays were submitted; they came not only from all parts of Western Pennsylvania, but also from other states. Thanks are due the contestants for the thought and care they bestowed on their contributions. While the viewpoints disclosed showed considerable variation, very few of the writers failed to discuss in an intelligent and creditable manner the question if a woman can pursue a business or professional career and at the same time manage her home and do justice to her family.

Here are the essays that won the five major prizes:

FIRST PRIZE—$100.

Electricity and modern inventions for the home have simplified present-day housekeeping. If the bride of today, instead of idling away most of her time, works and adds her earnings to a meager income, she is but following the trend of the times, that of co-operation, progress and achievement.

With good judgment and careful management, the 50-50 plan may be successful until the wise old stork, laughing at the schemes of mankind, flies into the home and leaves a small bundle of love—and complications.

Personally, I do not believe that even professional care given to a child can equal the love and guidance of a good, intelligent mother. There are, it is true, women who are doing great work in the world and at the same time are fine homemakers and mothers, but they are comparatively few in number. The average woman would, indeed, find it hard to do likewise.

There is no job more important than the rearing of even one child to upright manhood or womanhood. It is God's own plan for woman's work. Nancy Hanks was not a 50-50 bride, yet as a home-loving, home-tending wife she gave to the world the great man, Abraham Lincoln.

The ideal home of the average man and woman, I am sure, is one filled with love and understanding, where the husband is the provider and protector, and the wife the home-maker for a contented and happy family. No career for a woman can equal that of being the beloved helpmate and mother in her own home.

The 50-50 marriage may be successful where there are no children, but a great, happy nation cannot be built on a foundation of childless homes.

MRS. A. W. OTTERSON,
742 Middle avenue, Wilmerding, Pa.

SECOND PRIZE—$50

Yes, one can work. Keep a home and be married if one wants to and must.

My husband was in the World War and although seemingly healthy at the time I married him, after two years had a breakdown. I got a temporary position and worked six months. He then went back to work and I was laid off. Two years after that his firm changed hands and all employes were laid off. I again went to work and have been working since. His wages have been cut one-third, and without my help we could not get along.

On my lunch hour I buy food for the next day. I pare my potatoes and clean my vegetables the night before. I wash Saturday afternoon and iron Monday evening, or as many evenings as it takes me to finish. In the morning my husband makes the bed while I do the breakfast dishes.

Several months ago the house which I was renting was sold and it being cold weather I moved in with my mother and I do not have to do the above things, but we are looking for a place all our own again so you can judge by that that it isn't so hard to work and keep a home.

We get along beautifully and my husband certainly respects me and never gets tired of thanking me for what I am doing for him. I feel proud that I can help and enjoy doing it.

There is temptation for the idle, and if one had no children marriage does not last.

MRS. MARTHA BARBER,
1721 Montpelier avenue, Dormont, Pa.

THIRD PRIZE—$35.

Pre-supposing the necessity for increased income, without which no married woman should presume to enter the business world, it is possible for a small minority of women to care for husband, home, and children, and a business position, too.

But—only a woman of broad intelligence, who thinks of her children as the future citizens of a critical world, who thinks of her home as a place of peace, rest and comfort, who gives her business the same attention that her husband would and no more, who is in complete control of her mentality, as well as her nerves, and has the best of health—only such a woman can be successful in the dual life.

For the other 90 per cent home life, even with restricted pleasures, should provide a vocation. Happiness is an intangible thing, so worth-while, so necessary to perfect home life and guard it.

Just as it gives poise and dignity to a woman to know that she is prepared to be self-supporting, that same preparation banishes friction among children, and provides a more understanding sympathy for the man who labors to support the home.

A little business experience before marriage causes less selfishness on the part of a young wife, and a more sincire desire to make the home life just what the husband needs to prepare mind and body for greater effort to provide material comforts.

A fifty-fifty proposition in every way, a bear and forebear attitude, with neither presuming on the privileges accorded by the other, and home is nearest heaven of any place on earth.

MRS. C. W. DRESSLER,
1117 Milton avenue,
Swissvale, Pa.

FOURTH PRIZE—$25.

There have been women who have successfully managed a career and a home simultaneously. Current history has made these examples of public comment.

They are generally in two classes. Women with a great talent or gift which could not be denied, to whom money was not an object, who could divide their time between career and home as they so desired. Women who of dire necessity must go out and make a living for the home, whose sacrifice of home responsibilities more greatly endeared to them those same responsibilities.

However, this cannot be made a rule for the majority. The old proverb runs: "You cannot have your cake and eat it, too."

A married woman may successfully hold a job and have also fine dreams and plans for her home, but the real execution of these plans lies within the competent or incompetent hands in which she places her home responsibilities while she is "on the job." And if there are children, she has given out of her keeping the most sacred and beautiful part of her married life.

No job in the world was ever attacked with less training than the job of married life, and no job ever required more.

No woman was ever found to be utterly indispensable on a job. Sooner or later, when she stepped out, her shoes have been successfully filled.

But to make a successful home, hold the love and loyalty of a husband and bring up the family of your marriage, and see them fulfill your own dreams is an achievement worth striving for. And marriage is one job when successfully held where no one else can ever "fill your shoes."

MRS. ALICE M. EVERETT,
15 Imogene Rd., Brown's Pl.
Squirrel Hill, City.

FIFTH PRIZE—$20.

When God created the world He looked upon it and found that it was good, and beautiful to behold, yet one thing was lacking -- a living being—to make a perfect work of creation. Therefore, in infinite wisdom, He created man and placed woman by his side to be his partner and helpmeet. From the dawn of creation man has been the leader, fighting his way through the world to make a living not only for himself, but for the wife and children he loves. By virtue of this same law, woman's natural place is in the home. However, a great change has taken place, until in this modern day, with woman's entrance into the business world, the evolution seems to be almost complete.

Can a woman with a home, family and job be happy? The answer depends upon the problems of environment and circumstance. If a wife has a good home where love dwells and ample means for maintenance, her biggest and best job will be found—not outside, but in that home, which should give her supreme happiness. However, if necessity compels her to work to help maintain the home, then the problem presents an entirely different aspect. In such case she deserves praise for her courage and loyalty.

Happiness comes from within; it is of the spirit. When a wife, without necessity, divides her time between a home, family and job, something has to suffer from lack of proper attention. It is a rare woman who can manage all three and do it with the success that brings true happiness. A joyful spirit is like a precious jewel, shedding light and radiance all about. Therefore let the wife shed the radiance of her spirit at home, which is her rightful sphere.

Clubbed by Rival for Girl

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 10.—Blackjacked early this morning as he stepped from an automobile driven by a girl, James Keener, 36, reported to the county authorities that he had been the victim of a jealous rival.

He said that he lay along the highway for about half an hour before he finally regained consciousness. Neither his jewelry nor money was molested. A large lump back of the left ear was evidence of the assault.

Keener says he will pay $200 for the arrest of his assailant.

RAIL SALE SPEEDS MERGER

The welding of two railroads serving Pittsburgh into parts of large trunk line systems was brought a step nearer yesterday by the purchase of control of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh Railway by the Van Sweringen interests of Cleveland and by a ruling of the Interstate Commerce Commission in favor of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway Company.

O. P. and M. P. Van Sweringen announced the purchase of 67 per cent of the stock of the B., R. & P. from the investment banking houses of A. Iselin & Co. and Roosevelt & Sons.

The last shred of opposition to the construction of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway's extension to Connellsville was brushed aside by the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday.

CONTROL DIVIDED

Control of the B., R. & P. and the P. & W. Va. now rests with different financial interests, so that the two lines may form parts of separate systems when the muddle of railroad consolidations is straightened out.

P. & W. Va. has frequently been mentioned in railroad circles as a possible unit in the Van Sweringen system. The entrance of the Van Sweringens into this territory through the purchase announced yesterday makes this quite probable.

The B., R. & P. operates 600 miles of line extending from Pittsburgh to Ashford, N. Y., from which point branches extend to Buffalo and Rochester. It makes a total of nearly 10,000 miles of railway controlled by the Van Sweringens.

The two Cleveland brothers also are interested in Nickel Plate, Pere Marquette, Chesapeake and Ohio, Erie and Hocking Valley. Various attempts have been made to merge these properties. Objections on the part of the Interstate Commerce Commission have always blocked the plans.

B. R. & P. BRINGS $11,000,000

The Van Sweringens paid about $11,000,000 for their interest in Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh and have offered minority stockholders a price of $100 a share of preferred and common, the same price received by the bankers.

The Pittsburgh and West Virginia will be allowed to continue construction of its 38 mile line from Cochrans Mill to Connellsville, which will open a new through route to the Atlantic Coast, as a result of the refusal of the Commission to reopen the case against the extension. The petition was made by the Baltimore and Ohio, Pennsylvania and Nickel Plate railroads. These roads have opposed the Connellsville extension since the plan was first proposed.

Work was started August 28 on the $10,000,000 extension which will tie the Pittsburgh and West Virginia to the Western Maryland. Rapid progress has been made in pushing the line ahead since then.

Pittsburg and West Virginia's position as a key road in the railroad consolidation situation will be strengthened by the completion of the line. Although the road is only 60 miles in length, it would be a valuable asset to many of the giant systems because of its loop around Pittsburgh and its valuable terminal facilities.

NEW OUTLET TO SEA

In addition to giving Pittsburgh a new outlet to the sea, it will be able to move traffic from the Wheeling and Lake Erie lines when the extension is completed.

F. E. Taplin, chairman of the board of directors and president of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia, is playing a lone and powerful hand in the making of new railroad systems. At present his road has an application pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to secure control of the Wheeling and Lake Erie. He is opposed in this by the same carriers which fought the extension of his tracks to Connellsville.

Dies

THE REV. JEFFREYS

Stricken today with paralysis two days after he had been reelected as superintendent of the Allegheny district, Methodist Episcopal Church, the Rev. Judson Jeffreys, East End avenue, died suddenly in Columbia Hospital, Wilkinsburg.

JEFFREYS, M. E. SUPT. DIES

Less than two days after the close of the Pittsburgh annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in McKeesport, where he had been a tireless worker, the Rev. Dr. Judson Jeffreys, superintendent of the Allegheny district, died early Wednesday morning in Columbia Hospital, Wilkinsburg. He suffered a paralytic stroke in his home, 1108 East End avenue, Edgewood, last night.

Dr. Jeffreys had served his entire ministry of 24 years in the Pittsburgh conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, holding six pastorates before his elevation in 1927 to the administrative position.

He was born in Addison, Pa., and received his college training at Mount Union College. He was educated for the ministry at the school of theology of the Boston University.

His first charge was the Methodist Episcopal Church of Webster, Pa., where he served from 1904 to 1906. The next three years were spent as pastor of the Fayette City church, following which he served for six years as pastor of the Wilmerding congregation. In 1915 he left Wilmerding to assume charge of the Perrysville Avenue church, remaining in that field from 1915 to 1920, when he was appointed to the pastorate of the Scottdale church, where he stayed until 1925. Then he became pastor of the Mifflin Avenue church, Wilkinsburg, where he remained until he was chosen for the superintendency last year.

At various times he held the positions of conference statistician and conference treasurer.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Margaret Forsythe Jeffreys; two daughters, Virginia and Irma; two sons, Judson W. and Frank E.; two sisters, Mrs. Harry McCullough, of Fairmont, W. Va., and Mrs. Ruth Logan, of Cumberland, Md., and four brothers, Walter Jeffreys, of Pittsburgh, and Frank, Albert and Newton Jeffreys, of Addison, Pa.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon in the Mifflin Avenue Church, corner of Whitney and Mifflin avenues, Wilkinsburg.

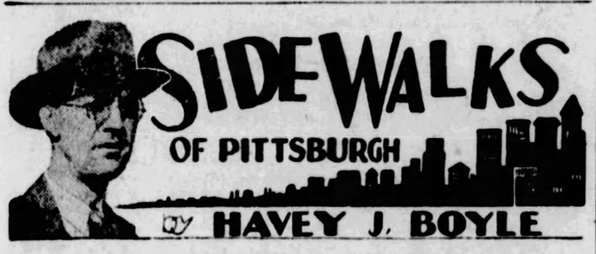
WATCH, CASH GONE AFTER NIGHT STAY AT HOTEL

Howard McElroy, of 402 Northminister street, reported to police today that when he awoke in a room at the Hotel Federal, 919 Federal street, early today, his watch and chain, valued at $100, and $20 in cash were missing. He said he had gone to the hotel in a taxicab.

WORKER DIES OF FALL FROM 31ST ST. BRIDGE

Believed to have lost his balance while working on the north end of the new Thirty-first Street Bridge, yesterday, Steve Fargo, 36, of 2202 Arlington avenue, fell 60 feet to railroad tracks and suffered injuries which caused his death a short time later in the Presbyterian Hospital.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH



By HAVEY J. BOYLE

THE number of arrests would indicate that such a procedure is not uncommon, but the clang of the patrol wagon and its drawing up to a police box never fails to stimulate the interest of the passers-by. An arrest in the downtown streets never fails to attract a capacity audience. There is much shoving and crowding to get near the prisoner, guarded by the arresting officer who always tries to appear unconcerned. After the prisoner is put into the hoosegow wagon a few venturesome souls press forward to get one last look at the alleged miscreant. We go even a little beyond that. We chase the patrol wagon for a half square or so until its speed makes the contest too uneven. If you want the benefit of our experience it is always well to hold your hat in your hand while thus chasing the wagon.

Having been hoodwinked into making a 7 o'clock appointment at a movie, which appointment did not eventuate until about 7:20 o'clock, we got a chance to gather valuable statistics in the matter of such appointments. We have prepared charts and graphs to substantiate our estimates. Roughly, the results show that 80 per cent of girls are from 10 to 15 minutes late; 10 per cent are a half hour late, and the other 10 per cent, giggling up their sleeves some place, never show up at all. In only one case under observation was the man late for his appointment. The resulting conversation from this tardiness indicated that he was married to the lady who had waited so long.

TURNING to the next page of our report we find that where two women meet one man, the elderly woman is the mother of the other lady. In 20 cases so studied not one mother of the man was in the party. Investigation indicated that 95 per cent of the children accompanying parents held onto the mother's hand, while the father seemed as free as the air. Three children in arms were crying enthusiastically, although a careful investigation of the scene indicated no earthly reason why they should be crying. Your investigator, lacking evidence, surmised there probably was a pin open some place.

The success of Al Jolson, who is in a good picture at the Stanley this week, lies in the fact that he lived his lines and his songs. That he would be convincing in a play where a wife deserts him and where his little boy dies was not hard to believe in view of the way he always could get worked up about a far more impossible mammy way down in Dixie.

THE old theme of the clown who must laugh though his heart is breaking is one that never fails to stir the customers. Barring only a few, there was not a dry eye in the house the night we saw and heard Jolson. Women enjoy a good, long cry just as much as a hearty laugh, with one difference: While not ashamed of a laugh they are backward about tears. When the lights go up the ladies try to disguise red eyes and noses that just won't behave. They have nothing to be ashamed of. Their men-companions simply are better actors, or have less facile tear ducts.

In Jolson's play the scenario man makes a compromise. He allows his hero to stage a comeback. Congenially committed to unhappy endings in books, plays and movies because they somehow seem more real and lasting, it was our belief that a man, with a tendency to go to the dogs, would so travel after what had happened to Jolson.

IF ROMEO and J[illegible] had married and lived happily ever after we likely would [illegible] forgotten all about them by this time.

We are still looking for a movie wherein the principal character [illegible] and remains extremely dead.

PRESSED STEEL CAR PLANT RAZED IN $250,000 FIRE

At least six persons were injured and damage of $250,000 resulted when fire early last night destroyed the car wheel department of the Pressed Steel Car Company, Stowe township.

One hundred and fifty men were thrown out of work as a result of the blaze. The plant was being operated on half-force basis.

The five volunteer fire companies of Stowe township and the paid department from McKees Rocks with the plant's firemen fought the blaze for more than four hours and prevented the flames from spreading to adjacent shops. The fire, of an undetermined origin, broke out in the foundry shortly after 7 o'clock and was discovered by an employe. The entire building, of one-story corrugated sheet iron about 250 feet wide and 100 feet long, was enveloped in flames when the fire fighters arrived.

Four firemen and two workmen suffered minor injuries when struck by falling sheet iron and embers.

C. W. Wrenshall, general manager of the plant, estimated the loss at a quarter of a million dollars.

Volunteer Fireman Harry Stewart, of No. 4 Hose Company, and L. B. Carson, an employe, of 912 Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks, were among those injured.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 10.

These candidates on their rounds better not hit the same town as Babe Ruth or they will feel like they are running for Congress instead of President.

Yes, baseball is awful crooked, it was all fixed to stretch the series out to four games.

New York City is all excited over the poison liquor and they are thinking of passing a city ordinance to make it unlawful to sell it.

Better Than Ice

SOLID carbon dioxide is now used for cold storage purposes, and is more effective than water ice. As it evaporates, the carbon dioxide gas collects round the objects to be kept cool, and prevents heat from reaching them.

STOLEN LOVE by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Joan Hastings, 17 and beautiful, lives a secluded life with her two old maiden aunts in a house long run to seed. Aunt Evvie, discovering that Joan has visited a dance hall, angrily reveals to her the story of her unmarried mother's tragic love affair and death. Joan, alone in her room, clasps to her heart a miniature of her mother and refuses to believe she was anything but good. Aunt Evvie buys a cheap automobile and engages Bill Martin, a garage worker, one day a week to care for it. Bill, looking up from his work, sees Joan waching him from her window. Later Bill and Joan meet and fall in love with each other. Meanwhile, the aunts plan to send Joan away to school. Bill tells the girl that he is very poor and it may be years before he can think of marrying, but she vows she will wait for him. Joan is thrilled when she writes her first love letter to Bill.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VI.

"BILL didn't come home all night!" Eunice, dangling the colicky baby on her hip, stirred the bubbling stew with her free hand, and glared at her mother as if it were her fault.

Mrs. Martin, with one plump white-stockinged leg propped up on a chair, moved uneasily in her patent rocker.

"He'll turn up," she said. "He always does. An' bring home his wages too. Bill's a good boy. He never caused me one mite of worry all his whole life, an' I'm not startin' in now."

"You've always been partial to him—ever since we were kids. Bill—Bill—Bill—perfect.

"He'll be along for lunch. Besides, dearie, I don't think it hurt Milt any to drive that truck last night."

"With a jumping, throbbing toothache!" The younger woman put the whimpering baby on the floor with a soft thud of sodden garments, and began to dish up the stew viciously. "No. It was all imagination because it was my husband. If it was Bill it would have been different."

"Hello!" The screen door slammed, and Bill came in, with the twins, Ruby and Rosalie, giggling and squealing at his heels. "Hello, Ma—how's the bum foot. What's the matter, Milt—mumps?"

"Ulcerated tooth. Got worse last night. I got a job driving a truck for Begoni's—"

"Begoni's—the milk people—I thought they failed?"

"No. They started up again." Milt's shifty little eyes were on his plate. "It's a good thing—if I felt stronger I'd like it fine."

"And now I'd like to ask a question—since Ma won't!" Eunice cut in acidly. "Where were you last night, young man? That's what I'd like to know."

The dull red rose in the boy's tanned face. He flung down his napkin angrily. "I didn't work. And I don't have to account to Eunice or anybody else where I was either. I hold a good job and bring home the money—"

"Sure—leave him alone!" Milt put in hastily. The subject was swinging to dangerous ground.

"A little more stew, Billie? Eunice—get him a little more—"

"No, I had enough, Ma. Got to be getting back to work." He patted old Mrs. Martin's plump, stooped shoulder and fled.

Work—that was what he needed. Work. It would keep him from thinking. Worrying. He almost ran the rest of the way to the garage.

Furiously he set to work polishing a big blue car. All his strength went into it. Faster, faster the rags flew under his hands. Feverishly he searched for the nickel polish. There was a spot he couldn't get out—there—darn it—there—now it was beginning to look like something—

"Bill!" Dolores Gerwin's throaty soprano finally penetrated his consciousness. Dolores kept the books, and didn't hesitate to call on Bill for help whenever Gerwin was out.

"Oh, darned her," he groaned, "what does she want now?"

He strode around to the little office. "Well, what is it?"

Dolores smiled into his resentful eyes. Her warm fingers ran lightly down his bare arm. "Don't be so cross! Miss Van Fleet's car won't start. You'll have to go up and see it."

Miss Van Fleet's car . . . he'd see Joan. "All right," he said quickly, "I'll go!"

Se came down the dusty road to meet him. At the turn near Gray's big old cherry tree she waited, smiling. The wind caught her faded blue gingham skirts, swirled them flapping about her. It blew her tawny hair into fine gold spray. And at sight of her, calm and radiant and welcoming, the sick tumult in him ceased too, and he was able to take her hands and meet her searching tender eyes.

"Wasn't it lovely Aunt Evvie's car broke down? I was so afraid Gerwin would come himself." She laughed with the joy of seeing him.

"You'll be able to slip out tonight?" he asked quickly.

She nodded, still smiling. "Oh, yes. They go to bed early, and all my packing is done. To think of leaving you tomorrow—for a whole year . . . Oh Bill!"

"Don't talk about that now—it—it sort of knocks me out," he said jerkily.

They walked on silently, still holding hands like children. And now they were almost at the hedge. Another moment, and they would have to part again.

"I'll be here at 10. If you're late I'll wait. Gerwin said I could borrow the roadster. He cracked some jokes about me and my girl . . . Oh, Johnnie—Johnnie—"

"You're worrying!" she cried sharply. "Why, Bill? You shouldn't—we should be very happy. What's a year when we have each other—to wait for?"

"It's because—" He hung his head, and scuffed up the dirt with a nervous heel. "I'm so desperately afraid you'll get to hating me . . . sometimes . . . when you've had more time to think. I'm older—I should have—"

He stopped suddenly. Someone was coming.

Joan scuttled for the hole in the hedge, like a big blue gingham rabbit, but before she ran she put her two hands on his shoulders for a fraction of a second, and kissed him swiftly.

As he turned, half blinded by the sun and the crazy tears that started to his eyes, he felt rather than saw, that he knew the woman coming up the road.

When he was explaining the carburetor trouble to Evvie Van Fleet a few moments later the vision of the red-faced woman tolling up the hill came wandering into his mind again.

"Why," he thought, "that must have been Dolores . . . but what the dickens did she want up here?"

The last light was out in the old Van Fleet house.

Only Joan was wakeful. Still wearing the faded gingham she had worn all day, with Babe's pink shawl about her shoulders, she knelt in the window waiting for Bill.

The thought of the rose garden made her heart beat crazily. She got up and tiptoed into the hall. Ten o'clock. Bill was late.

Cautiously she picked her way down the stairs, avoiding the creaky spots. She would wait in the garden, it would save time when he came.

When the dew had wet her uncovered hair and the chill breeze from the bay had penetrated her light wrap she knew that she had been waiting a long time. Fear, jagged and sharp, tore at her heart.

"There's been an accident . . . something happened to him driving up in the car. . . . Oh, why didn't I think of it before?"

And now she was flying down the road in the dusty moonlight, trying to see ahead in the shadows, afraid to look, hearing little moaning, crying noises in the bushes.

"Oh, Bill—Bill! Please God don't let anything happen to Bill. Bill! It's Joan—where are you?"

Once she called out loud, and her voice came echoing eerily back from the hillside. She was down on the low road now, near the bay. The wind whistled, and she covered her ears with her hands, and stumbled on.

The houses were all dark, not a light in one of them. No sign of a wrecked car on the road. Nothing—nothing but darkness, and loneliness and pain.

When the morning came, and there was nothing left to wait for, Joan came quietly into the house, but she did not tiptoe, nor did she step over the squeaky spots on the stairs. It didn't matter whether she woke Aunt Evvie or not—nothing mattered except Bill, and Bill was dead. Nothing but death could have kept Bill from her, on their last night. . . .

Carefully, quietly, she washed her face and hands, pulled a comb through her tangled hair. There was a great gaping hole in her stocking, stiff with mud and congealed blood. She must have hurt her knee that time she fell in the dark on the rocks. Strange that it didn't hurt.

She looked at herself anxiously in the mirror, for she didn't want to frighten Bill's mother. That was why she had made herself neat, because she was going to Bill's house, to see his mother.

Bill's front door had a heavy, old-fashioned bell, the kind that you pull out and then release with a clang. Her hand touched it hesitantly. She couldn't do it, it would make too much noise. She rapped timidly and when no one answered she tried again, a little louder.

A gray-faced man with a swollen jaw and little shifty eyes came to the door. His face was unwashed, and his suspenders were hanging.

"I came—to ask about Bill Martin," she said in a small voice.

He continued to look at her, holding his jaw with one hand. "Eunice!" he called at last. "Somebody's here!"

A slatternly young woman with two round-eyed little girls peeking from her skirts came and stood beside him inside the screen door.

"What do you want?" she asked sharply.

Joan saw she had been crying, her eyes were puffed and red.

"Oh, what is it?" Joan cried. "What happened to Bill—tell me!" And she brushed past the two at the door and ran into the kitchen, where little old Mrs. Martin wept steadily and hopelessly in the corner.

"Well, I never!" Eunice whispered. "It's Miss Van Fleet's niece!"

Now Joan was kneeling beside the old lady, her arms clasped tight around her fat waist. "Tell me how it happened—oh, please, tell me—where is he?"

"I'll tell you," Eunice said suddenly. "It's Bergoni's—the milk people, you know. At least, that's what they call themselves. They hired my husband to drive a milk truck—milk!" she laughed mirthlessly. "Moonshine—that's what it was. Imposing on an honest man that way—"

"But Bill—where's Bill?"

"It was whisky, I tell you!" Eunice repeated, impatiently. "They got caught—federal authorities—don't you see?"

But Joan didn't see. She looked from one to the other, not comprehending. Oh, if only Bill's mother would talk—she knew—she knew—!

"You see—I wasn't able to drive last night," the man with the swollen jaw said heavily. "Bill—he drove for me. He was exceeding the speed limits—driving like crazy trying to get back early—"

"He's dead—I knew it!" Joan thought wildly. "Trying to get back to me. Oh, Bill—Bill—"

"So it was more or less his own fault," the man finished judiciously. "Otherwise they'd never have stopped him. They didn't have anything on Bergoni before that."

There was another long pause. Then the old lady straightened up and wiped her eyes. She looked at Joan a long time. "You don't understand, dearie. They've taken my boy away. To jail!"

Marrying the Right Girl No Mistake for Any Man, Fay King Opines

THE WIFE WHO MAKES A COZY HOME WITHIN THEIR MEANS, GIVES HER HUSBAND THE PROPER BACKGROUND AND FOUNDATION FOR SUCCESS
NO YOUNG MAN MAKES A MISTAKE IN MARRYING THE GIRL WHO BELIEVES IN HIM AND WANTS HIM TO SUCCEED!
WE'RE GOING TO HAVE A GAME OF POKER, BILL!
SORRY, OLD FELLOW, BUT I HAVE TO GET HOME EARLY!
HUSBANDS AREN'T HENPECKED, THEY JUST MAKE IT SOUND THAT WAY, BECAUSE MARRIAGE IS A GREAT LITTLE ALIBI TO BREAK WITH WASTERS!
FAY-KING

By FAY KING

NO YOUNG man makes a mistake in marrying the right girl.

The right girl is the one who believes in him, who has faith in his future.

It is not the girl who works him to a finish.

It is not the girl who, caring little for him, can pretend so beautifully, and treat him so well one day and hurt him so deeply the next.

It is not the girl whose demands are beyond his salary, and who wants only to be entertained in showy places.

It is the girl who tantalizes and belittles him.

The right girl encourages him in ambitions, encourages him to save.

Marriage is a good recommendation for a man in any community. It marks him a man who does not shirk responsibility.

For the Lovelorn

Dot and Dash

DEAR MISS GALE:

We are two sisters, 15 and 16, respectively. We agree with you on the drinking, smoking and necking questions. Now, here is our trouble: Last week we met two fellows at a party whom we shall call A and B. The fellows we went with were in a parked car with two girls the biggest part of the evening. As we do not intend to play second fiddle to anyone we allowed A and B to take us home. But the other boys do not look at it in the same way as we do and they have made several threats that "if they catch us out alone it's going to be too bad for us." And they mean it, too, because several of our girl friends heard the boys talking about it. Now, please give us your advice. Our mother is dead and our father is a business man although he gives us everything we want, he thinks we can take care of ourselves. Please publish this soon as we are afraid of these boys. Thanking you in advance, we are

DOT AND DASH.

Your father should certainly know what these boys are saying, my dears. If he has any paternal feeling at all he will know that you cannot cope with such a situation yourselves.

INGROWN NAIL

Turns Right Out Itself

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail that it cannot penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

COOKING SCHOOL NEWS

As quick as broiling a steak

All you need is an ordinary saucepan, a French Fryer and a 3-pound tin of Crisco.

Put your Crisco into a cold pan and heat slowly. When a piece of bread browns in 20 seconds your Crisco is ready for frying potatoes. Don't wait for Crisco to smoke.

Fill your French Fryer half full of potatoes and lower it into the Crisco. Increase the heat as the cold potatoes naturally cool the Crisco a little.

When brown lift French Fryer out of the fat, shake lightly, drain the potatoes on brown paper and sprinkle with salt.

When you have finished strain your Crisco back into the can and set it aside to cool. Then it is ready to use over and over again for anything you want to fry. The taste of one thing will not be carried to another.

French Fried Potatoes

JUST because we eat them almost every day we are likely to think of potatoes as a homely food. Why—they are banquet food! Really the flavor of the potato—particularly when French fried—is one of the most subtle and delicate of all flavors that inventive nature ever concocted.

But to bring out this delicate flavor it is essential that you use a sweet flavored cooking fat. And there's only one way to really test the flavor of your fat—taste it, just as you taste your milk; just as you test your eggs.

Taste Crisco as it comes from the can. Isn't it easy to understand now why Crisco's fresh sweet flavor makes fried foods taste so much better?

French Fried Potatoes

A real treat at home. When fried in Crisco they are delicious—a crisp even brown, no greasy outside and no smoke in your kitchen.

Allow one medium-sized potato for each person. Peel potatoes, cut in strips about one-half inch square. Let stand in cold water about an hour, or they can be kept in the ice-box overnight if covered with water. When ready to fry, drain, dry in a towel, and put a few at a time into hot Crisco (395° F.), or when a bread crumb browns in 20 seconds. When brown and tender, drain on brown paper, sprinkle with salt, and serve.

Fry raw or cooked sweet potatoes the same way, but do not soak them in water.

Never wait for Crisco to smoke, as it would be too hot to fry if it were hot enough to smoke.

You taste your milk—
You test your eggs—

NOW—taste your shortening!

Crisco's sweet flavor will delight you!

Crisco is used for Frying, for Shortening, for Cake-Making

Crisco is the registered trade-mark of a shortening manufactured by The Procter & Gamble Company

DRUGS EXCITE THE KIDNEYS, DRINK WATER

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat to much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

An Old Recipe to Darken Hair

By JANICE RANDALL

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 75 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

CITY TO TAKE UP GAS STATION AT BRIDGE

Council has asked the Public Safety Department to report on the legality of a gasoline station under construction at Forbes street and Sixth avenue opposite the approach of Liberty Bridge. The request was made after President James F. Malone had presented yesterday the letter sent recently by the county commissioners objecting to the building. The commissioners wrote that the county "has $10,000,000 invested in that neighborhood and has under advisement the removal of the present county jail."

"There will be an enormous amount of traffic at this corner within a short space of time when the Saw Mill Run boulevard comes into the new bridge and we (the commissioners) feel that Council should look into this matter at once," the letter stated.

When the gasoline station was discussed by the commissioners, Charles C. McGovern said it looked like a "shake-down," implying that the owners were convinced that the site would have to be bought eventually by the city or county at a high price to allow for street widening.

The councilmanic resolution asked if the ordinance regulating zoning and building inspection had been complied with.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Youth Gives Little Thought to Future

IF I were a good looking young woman or a stalwart young man, it seems to me I should find out how to keep my strength and beauty. As we grow older we mourn the neglect and indifference of our youthful days.

DR COPELAND.

The foundation of the health, vigor and mental capacity of middle and advanced life is laid in childhood and youth. Likewise, the foundation of the ill-health and warped thinking of the adult may be laid in early life.

The trouble about young people is that they are so confident of themselves, so greatly engaged in the enjoyments of youth, that they never thinnk of what may come in old age. Indeed, in the fullness of youth, they really feel they "don't want to live to be old."

But common sense indicates that the majority, or at least a considerable proportion of the flappers and gay lads of today will live into the fifties and sixties and even into the seventies. Have you thought of that? What sort of person will you be at 60 or 70?

Bad teeth, dyspepsia, a poor heart, chronic bronchitis, weakened kidneys, diseased pelvic organs, stiff joints, painful feet—most of these, perhaps, all of them and other ailments besides, are usually traced to youthful neglect.

You will be obliged to live with your body at 70, just as you do at 20. Isn't it worth while to prepare for that remote period of your own existence?

It is a wonderful thing to be alive and young in this remarkable period. Only today I read of a man who has reached his hundredth birthday. In a newspaper interview he praises the youth of 1928, contrasting them with the young people of 80 years ago. The old gentleman would not for the world have our boys and girls live and work and slave as they did then. He tells about the superior beauty and physical welfare of the youth of today.

There can be no doubt that the world is progressing and we are better off by far than were our grandparents. But my plea is for the conservation of these privileges and for a manner of living that will make the old people of the year 2,000, a far better race than we have now.

Young people don't think a great deal about the "race." It is only preachers and doctors and women's clubs who are thinking in these terms. But, listen, you are interested in you! Even though the "race" can go to pot, you are individual members of it. What is to become of you?

You need have no less fun. You need not curtail the essential features of your present day life. It is not for radical restrictions upon your freedom that I plead.

But I do plead for such voluntary regulation of your physical habits that you will not damage that wonderful body or lessen the possibilities of your alert mind.

Most of you who read these words I shall never see. None the less I am interested in your future. I want you to succeed, to succeed in the best sense. Merely to get money is not success. To marry "brilliantly" is not success.

To have a strong body, free from taint and secret weakness; to have a clean mind, founded on respect for all that is decent; to be able to think straight; to beget healthy children; to be useful and effective in advanced life—can you picture greater success?

Think on these things, dear young people. They are worthy your attention. What you will be a half century from now and what your companions of that day will think about you, are determined by an observance of these suggestions.

That's that!

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, October 11

THE stellar operations for this day may not be interpreted as boldly affecting current affairs. Those in the employment of others may find small favors or preferment, but the finances are not strongly fortified. There is a sign of some difficulty or misunderstanding regarding letters or writings. The personal outlook may be solemn or introspective.

Those whose birthday it is may not expect a very important year, although there may be some recognition or favors if in employment. The finances are weak and personal attitudes may be sudden or melancholy. Be cautious with writings.

A child born on this day may be disposed to serious view of life, to be prudent, frugal and modest. It may have good abilities and may succeed in employment.

Lover's Moon -:- -:- By Truda Dahl

DID you ever wonder where Dan Cupid lives? I used to think and wonder and ponder over this question, but at last I have discovered the hiding place of this adorable person. Where do you think he lives? You'll understand better about a lot of things when I tell you the secret and here it is. He lives in the MOON! No wonder the moon has ever been known as the Lover's friend!

I always knew that Dan had something to do with that part of the question, but I simply thought he and the Moon were in league to help all lovers. But now I find that Dan actually lives there and makes the moon bright or dim, as the mood may strike him, and as he may see fit to help out all the earthly lovers.

Truly then we can call it a "Lover's Moon," for it's the dwelling place of the god of Love, and he it is who guides the beams that they fall softly on lovers and help them to whisper over and over the "old, sweet story."

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

A Mysterious Invitation and a Sudden Shock

LILLIAN'S admonition sent me to my bed with a sense of responsibility weighing me down.

"More than you think may stand or fall with the deciphering of that code," she had said, and I knew that she did not speak idly. But I was too weary to worry about anything very long. My night's vigil over the cryptic characters, my fright at the approach of the mysterious men, my joy when they revealed their identity and my terror at my father's condition had combined to exhaust me.

It was nearly noon when I awakened, refreshed and with a psychic little conviction that sooner or later I should be able to discover the secret hidden in the characters I had copied from the paper hidden in the miniature of Princess Olina. I took a needle ice shower, dressed and tapped at Lillian's door.

She opened it instantly and swept me with an approving glance.

"Fit as the well known fiddle," she pronounced. "Had your breakfast?"

"Not yet."

"I'll go down with you and drink another cup of coffee. I never can resist Katie's fresh coffee. Allen's lurking around there somewhere, ready to dash upstairs to cover if a stranger comes into the offing. He'll be good for a cup, too. I never knew him to fail to sit up and beg for one when he smells it brewing.

"You two probably are the champion coffee fiends of the world," I told her, smiling, as she tucked her arm into mine and we went down to the kitchen together.

Katie was royally accommodating as she always is over my breakfast and beamed at Lillian's request for coffee. And then we were in the dining room with Allen Drake's tall figure advancing toward me.

He had changed very little in the years since I had seen him, I told him myself, as I held out my hand in greeting to the brilliant secret service agent whose covert criticisms of the mental abilities of women had so often aroused me to futile wrath against him. His tall figure was still straight as an arrow and his keen, well-cut features were no older in appearance than they had been when we had worked together and I had been torn between intense admiration for his brilliance and resentment for the attitude he took toward me, that of a man frankly admiring my looks, but almost openly contemptuous of my mentality.

"Ah, Mrs. Graham!" He bent and kissed my hand with the indolent leisurely grace that is his. "This is indeed a great pleasure to see you again. I did not have time to tell you so last night."

"I am glad you can be here," I returned simply. "But I am so anxious. What do you think of my father? Lillian tells me that he is still sleeping."

"I stole into his room half an hour ago, and he was sleeping soundly. I do not think you need to be alarmed. A rest will set him up again, I am sure."

"Thanks, Allen," Lillian interposed. "Now she can eat her breakfast."

But I was not destined to finish it without interruption. As I was drinking my last cup of coffee Katie told me that someone must see me in the kitchen, and when I went out there I found Jim waiting for me with eyes curiously excited.

"Please, Mis' Graham, will you come out right away to the barn?" he said, and without waiting for my reply turned and hurried out of the kitchen. There was something so compelling in the manner of his request that I immediately followed him. Upon rounding the corner of the barn Jim stopped, and I saw the red-bearded man from the shack standing just inside the barn door.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

MAN'S GREAT FIDELITY

IT IS very consoling to lots of wives to learn that King George is wearing his "old white yachting cap" for the eleventh season, and that his old white yachting trousers, thanks to careful cleaning, have just served their tenth season.

* * *

Even a QUEEN can't find a corner, in all the closets of the castle, in which to hide her husband's aged sport clothes where their master can't discover and retrieve them! How, then, can any three-room-and-kitchenette wife be expected to cope with such fidelity?

HELEN ROWLAND

Oh, to be cherished as a man cherishes his old sport clothes! To be treasured through the years and regarded with affection long after you are moth-eaten and passe! What woman would not give her best fingernail to be able to inspire such tender loyalty and devotion in any man?

* * *

A man may change from blonde to brunette or from wife to wife, but he will hang onto his last college sweater as faithfully and tenaciously as a bulldog hangs onto a coat-tail.

Long after his leather hunting jacket has driven his wife out of his den or his closet by sheer force of its clinging fragrance, he will cherish and wear it, in preference to a shiny, clean new one given him by his firm or his fraternity.

You may be able to vamp a man away from his wife, but you can't PRY him loose from an old pair of knickers or a golf cap to which he is wedded.

You may steal them and bury them in the ash can, but, like a pointer, he will track them down and dig them out and drag them back into the house. You may get desperate and give his old woollen fishing shirt to the janitor—but he will only make a "scene" and go around with a hurt look in his eyes until he can bargain with the janitor to get it BACK again!

* * *

And this same astounding and beautiful fidelity applies to his old shoes and hats. No bright, new, spotless autumn fedora or derby can quite take the place in his heart of the dilapidated relic of last year's model that he drags out from the back of his closet.

Considering the lightning changes of his heart and his sentimental interests, this touching fidelity to his old clothes is man's most astonishing characteristic. He loves only the garments he has got USED to, and regards all new ones as enemies to his comfort. Even a king can go right on loving a pair of yachting trousers for 10 long years!

* * *

Not until her husband DIES does the average woman dare to dispose of his cherished old sport clothes—and THEN they are such tender mementoes, such monuments of his fidelity, that she cannot bear to destroy them! As long as he lives, and even after he dies, you are wedded to a man's old clothes! Ask Queen Mary!

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

BEST IN PITTSB... WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1928 NINETEEN

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Staff Correspondent.

Ruling Ought to be Made Forcing Yanks to Spot National League Opponents First Three Games—Huggmen Show Tremendous Strength—Ruth, Gehrig Prove Fireworks—Bambino Sets New Records.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—If the New York Yankees continue to be world series participants the baseball powers ought to draft a rule compelling them to spot their National League opponents the first three games.

Lou Gehrig

Probably even that handicap would not prevent the mighty New York machine from winning the title, in view of what it has accomplished in the last two series against the Pirates and Cardinals, but at least it might serve to make the competition a little more interesting.

AS matters stand now, the opposition offered by the National League pennant winners to the slugging brigade of Ruth, Gehrig and Company, is so farsically feeble as to be little more than a laugh.

For the second year in succession the Yankees have won the globe stakes in four straight games, an achievement never before placed to the credit of any team and one that probably will still be standing long after the present generation, and perhaps others to follow, have passed on.

FIRST the Pirates, and now the Cardinals, National League pennant winners in two successive years, have been made to look like minor leaguers by the dynamic power of the Yankee sluggers. Before the beginning of the 1928 series it was figured by nearly every dopester in the country that there would be a far different result as compared with that of 1927. The Yanks had lost the services of Herb Pennock and Earl Combs, and so many of the others were said to be playing under the handicap of injuries that the Redbirds were installed as 6-to-5 favorites and picked to win in from five to six games.

BUT either those reports were mere bear stories of the kind common to football teams shortly before the date of a big game, or the Yanks were miraculously cured of their hurts prior to the opening of the series with Bill McKechnie's club. For it was the Cardinals themselves, instead of the Huggmen, who looked like cripples during the brief engagement. They couldn't do anything right despite the fact that they got a number of breaks Sunday and yesterday. Their star hitters, notably Jim Bottomley, were unable at times to knock even a loud or respectable looking foul. Their fielding was off color, the work of their vaunted catcher, Jimmy Wilson, rated the best in the National League, was so amateurish in the third game that Earl Smith, discarded in turn by the Giants, Braves and Pirates, was sent in to take his place, and their pitching was so ineffective that in none of the four games did the starting hurler go the full distance. The team as a whole looked worse than the Buccaneers looked in 1927. And that's looking some.

Babe Ruth

HOWEVER, the feeble showing of the Cards should not be allowed to detract from the credit due the Yankees for their second successive achievement of the feat of winning the world series in four straight games.

In all justice to the victors, it must be said that the overwhelming defeat of the Missourians and the quick and decisive completion of the series in favor of the American Leaguers was due rather to the tremendous strength of the New York team than to the weakness of their opponents.

IT WAS apparent almost from the opening of the series, in the light of the vast difference between the brands of ball played by the two teams, that it was only a question of how many games would be required to send the Cards down to defeat.

Not only was the New York pitching far superior to that of St. Louis—Hoyt twice and Pipgras and Zachary once each going the full route as starting moundsmen—but it would be ridiculous even to think of a comparison of the two attacks.

NOTHING approaching the offensive power of the Yankees has ever been uncovered in a world series. Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig in themselves were potent enough to have beaten any average club. They were so great on their own hook as to stand out as the greatest pair of players even seen on the same ball team. If it wasn't one, it was the other who was breaking up game after game by the most sensational exhibition of terrific hitting ever chronicled in the post-season derby.

RUTH, though brilliant and prominent in the earlier games, waited until the last day to set off his real fireworks. Until yesterday he had not done any of the home-run hitting for which he is famous, but in the fourth game he made up for his previous oversights by smashing three homers over the right-field pavilion at Sportsman's Park. Right field there is short, but two of the Bambino's drives would have been home runs on any grounds in the country. The other hit the roof of the pavilion and bounded out of the park. The three circuit smashes were made in his last four times at bat; on each occasion the bases were empty.

IN CONNECTION with Ruth's second homer, made in the seventh inning, a dispute arose that led to a hostile demonstration against Babe by the St. Louis fans for which there was no excuse. After two strikes had been called on Ruth, Pitcher Sherdel tried the old quick return trick at which Patsy Flaherty, Carnegie product and one-time Pirate, was an expert in the long ago. When Umpire Pfirman refused to call the pitch a strike, the Cardinals made a vigorous protest that was taken up by the fans. The truth of the matter was that the umpires and managers at conference before the first game of the series had agreed that quick returns by the pitchers should be barred, so that Umpire Pfirman was correct in declaring the delivery "no pitch." The Cards' kick was based on the claim that Sherdel had not made a quick return and had simply caught Ruth napping, but to non-partisan spec-

GEHRIG, RUTH PROVE HEROES

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—National League fans today are fully aware that there is nothing in our circuit to compare with the Ruth-Gehrig baseball juggernaut which one week ago declared war on all Redbirds of the diamond.

Babe and Lou, as this is read, are speeding on their way to dear old New York with new laurels, the like of which have never been bestowed on athletes in any field of competitive endeavor.

Yes, it is only too true that the Yankees "took" two successive senior-league champs in successive games, but the eight running victories achieved by the Ruppert Rifles over the Pirates and Cardinals will not get nearly as much limelight as the individual performances of the two heroes of the sport.

FITTING FINALE

It was indeed fitting that the most heroic—perhaps the most lovable—person in baseball should bring the 1928 world series to a dramatic close. When the Bambino dashed like a sprinter over the foul line for a spectacular one-hand catch of Frank Frisch's foul with two down in the ninth yesterday, he presented a striking scene.

The catch in itself was a circus feature, but Babe, beside himself with joy, raced down the boundary line with the rocket in his glove, the tremendous fellow looking twice as formidable as Jim Thorpe on his way to a 60-yard run. One bold fan stepped into the field in an attempt to wrest the souvenir ball out of the grasp of the giant, but the tackler was spun like a turntable for his effort.

Babe caught the ball dangerously close to the stands, skirted danger with the deftness of a Tom Davies dodging a tackler and then sprinted down the field to the dugout exit with the speed of a track man, the white rocket all the while nestled in his glove.

Indeed, it was appropriate for the most imposing figure in the game to climax his unmatched batting feats with a fielding play that made 40,000 gasp. Any person who could not be thrilled by the sight of Babe as he captured Frisch's foul should cease going to athletic events.

BABE "IRRESISTIBLE"

The hostile bleacher fans did everything but come out and embrace the Bambino after Babe had been a storm center of pop-bottle strife.

The storm broke out in the seventh after Ruth had clicked his second of three homers that swayed the fourth and last battle to the American League champions. A moment before Babe drove the ball clear of the right-field pavilion roof, the Redbirds claimed that Bill Sherdel had whipped across a quick return pitch. Umpire Cy Pfirman of the National League ruled the pitch illegal and Babe then blasted his second homer, which deadlocked the game and was the signal for an avalanche.

It seems that the opposing managers and umpires, according to official advices, agreed before the series started that the quick return pitch would not be allowed. Sherdel is a clever exponent of the delivery in the National League. Wee Willie had Babe in a hole when he and Earl Smith tried the little stunt. The ball appeared to cut the plate, but Babe was not ready and did not offer at it.

As the ball sped plateward, Umpire Pfirman objected to the procedure. He said the pitch was "nothing," his ruling precipitating a wild scene. After the angry players had gone back to their posts, Babe lost the ball in Grand avenue and the game was tied up. While Sherdel was still in an angry state, Gehrig also slammed the ball over the right-field stands to put his team ahead. Sherdel then wilted and Alexander had to come to his rescue. The great veteran could not stem the tide, the American Leaguers winning, 7 to 3, at the close.

Ruth reserved his favorite act for the fourth clash of the champion-

TWO VICTORIES MARK OPENING OF SEASON

South Hills High School has won the first two games of its schedule, beating Allegheny, 7-0, and South, 19-0. Tomorrow it plays Oliver High on the latter's field. Other opponents on the difficult schedule include New Castle, Perry, Dormont, Carrick and Langley.

The team is light and fast and well coached. Fullback Pietsch, nicknamed "Peaches," is one of best line-plunging fullbacks in the scholastic ranks. He has plenty of leg-drive. Capt. Davis calls the signals from his halfback position and is a good ball-carrier and forward-passer.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS by HARRY KECK SPORTS EDITOR

LOOKS as if the only way to keep the Yankees from making a farce out of the world series and muggs out of their opponents is to handicap them in some way. How about making them win seven straight or no count?

There is no truth in the report that Bill McKechnie and Donie Bush held a wake last night over the subject of how to beat the Yankees.

OUR Pirates of last year do not look so terrible now in view of what happened to the Cards, who cracked wide open at the finish. The same thing would be likely to happen to almost any other club. That constant pounding of the farthest ramparts by Ruth, Gehrig, Meusel, et al., is enough to shatter any foe's morale.

Another good way to handicap the Yankees in the series would be to limit their home runs to two bases. Or make them go into the battles without any cripples.

THE plan of Benny Leonard to stage boxing bouts here this winter if his hockey club goes over all right fails to arouse any fear or jealousy on the part of the Motor Square Garden Club, the only organization to stage mitt shows in this city with any degree of regularity in recent years. Instead, John Hernon, manager of the Garden, said today he would welcome the coming of Leonard into the field.

"What this town needs in a boxing way is more activity," Hernon said. "If there were two or three clubs operating instead of only one, more talent would be developed and more interest would be awakened among the fans. There's nothing like competition to boom any business. And the keener the better."

That's a sensible view of the situation.

A fine idea is the plan of City Council to provide a football trophy emblematic of the city championship to the winner of the annual battle between Pitt and Carnegie Tech. Thus a definite and official award of the championship will be made and the athletes will have something symbolic of victory to look forward to.

U. S. TO GET $77,000

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The government expects to collect about $80,000 in taxes from money paid by baseball fans to see the New York Americans win the world championship. The amount, from preliminary estimates, will be the smallest except once, in the last five years.

The government tax on tickets sold to the four games, according to preliminary estimates, will be 77,729, but it is expected to be swelled through the additional tax on ticket speculators and agencies. In addition to the regular tax the government gets 5 cents on each ticket resold at 50 cents above the regular price, and 50 per cent of the excess if the resale price is more than 50 cents above the regular price.

Th government tax on the Washington-New York world series was $108,177; on the Washington-Pittsburgh series $118,423; St. Louis-New York series $120,789, and on the Pittsburgh-New York series of last year, when only four games were played, the tax was $78,650.

LINKSMAN SCORES TWO ACES AT WANANGO

OIL CITY, Oct. 10.—Two holes in one this season is the record made by Bob Fry, member of the Wanango Country Club. Early in the season Fry made an ace on No. 8, yesterday he duplicated the stunt on No. 10. The distance is 184 yards, and the carry is over a ravine.

Fry was playing with his father, Dr. G. N. Fry, well-known local golfer; B. B. Case and Gus Sutton.

M'KECHNIE REFUSES TO OFFER ALIBIS

Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 9.

"EAST SIDE, West Side, all around the town,
"The tots sing ring-a-rosie.
"London Bridge is falling down.
"Boys and girls together,
"Me and Mamie O'Rourke,
"We tripped the light fantastic,
"On the sidewalks of New York."

In booming bass voices, baritones and shrill tenors, the Yankees, gloriously happy in their triumph of walloping the Cardinals in four straight victories, burst into this song as they rushed into the dressing room down under the grand stand in Sportsman's Park yesterday.

All the noise and singing came from the Yanks. All the peace and quiet, the soberness of extreme depression, came from the Cardinals in their dressing room adjoining that of the triumphant Yankees. None of the players, with the exception of wee Willie Sherdel, and William McKechnie, their manager, would talk.

"Give them all the glory that is theirs," said McKechnie, referring to the conquering Yanks. I have no alibis to offer. The breaks went against us. That's all."

NEW TO SHERDEL

Sherdel, who attempted to sneak over a quick strike on Babe Ruth in the famous seventh inning when he had two strikes on him, protested the strike should have been allowed; that Ruth, who smacked the next ball over the right grand stand for his first of a trio of homers, should have gone to the Yankee dugout a strikeout victim instead of a home run hero.

"If there was an understanding among the umpires in prohibiting a quick turn, it was a secret to me," Sherdel said. "They didn't let me in on it. I have been using a quick turn all the time in the National League. There is no rule against it.

"Why, once I tried it on Tony Kaufmann in Chicago and he looked up just in time to knock the ball into the left field bleachers.

"I was standing on the rubber when I made the quick delivery. Ruth was in the batter's box. The Babe never saw it. The ball was right in the slot, a sure-enough strike.

"After the ball was on the way to the plate, Pfirman, the umpire, waved his hands signalling 'time out.' He shouldn't have done that."

Sherdel made no excuse for the two balls that Ruth knocked out of the place for home runs. They were low curves, pitched inside, he said.

PRAISES RUTH

"I sent them where I wanted to," Sherdel added. "I hated to see them sail out of the park, but a ball game is a ball game.

"Ruth is just a great, terrible hitter. More power to him. I'm glad he isn't in the National League."

Huggins was tremendously happy. Questioned about Sherdel's protest of the quick delivery made Ruth, Huggins smilingly said:

"Oh, forget about that."

Ruth, whose achievement in connecting with three home runs, thrilled the great crowd with excitement, was more concerned over his masterful, one-handed catch of Frisch's fly, the last play of the game, than he was over the homers.

"Did you see that catch?" he

CHILLY SAUCE BY CHILLY DOYLE

Staff Correspondent.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—Any time a Cardinal tosses in his sleep during the winter months he won't need the family doctor to tell him the source of the uneasiness. The figure of the Bambino at the plate, on the bases or in the field will hardly be the subject of pleasant dreams for those so closely interested, particularly the hurlers who had to go through the ordeal of pitching to the great slugger.

Many fans may wonder why the Redbird pitchers were not instructed to walk Babe. Well, perhaps that procedure would have worked out better so far as curtailing the Yankee run product, but don't forget that when you put Babe on the sacks you face another quandary. Where are you going to put Gehrig?

Anyhow the St. Louis pitchers and strategists showed plenty of courage in getting the balls over at least a part of the plate for Babe. And it might be stated here that there was none of the "dust-off" stuff in evidence.

At least one member of the Cardinal outfit was peeved apparently because the National League pitchers did not move toward slowing down the enemy batters. This athlete evidently was in favor of some intentional shooting although he did not say as much. His stand doubtless was due to his reaction to the base-running of Ruth and Gehrig in the sixth inning of the third game. On this occasion two of the Redbirds were toppled over, the net result being three Yankee tallies that practically won that contest.

The bowling over of Wilson at the plate by Babe Ruth to me looked like a regular play. Babe was entitled to slide for the home disn and Wilson, after reaching a bit to his right for the throw, had to come into Babe with the ball. From my position I would exonerate Babe from any wrong doing. He dove feet first and if one of his feet knocked the ball out of Jimmy's hands I think it was due to the natural force of his drive.

The Gehrig play spilling Frisch at second a moment before the scene at the plate, was hard to analyze from the press box. Nevertheless, it is an old established trick for runners to pile into second when they are out by many feet just to break up a double play. There is some question as to the sportsmanship of this procedure, especially when the base-runner dives at or steps on the feet of the pivot man in the play. The practice is winked at pretty much, but it would hardly stand the test of fairness.

Be that as it may neither Ruth nor Gehrig were "dusted off" once in the four games. There are quite a few pitchers in the National League who probably would try to frighten the sultans of swat with a "swifter" under the chin. The effect of such a fling on most batters is very noticeable. Unless one has a remarkable set of nerves he will loosen up a bit on his toe-hold, and the famous toe-hold is a part of the home run markers' kit.

Jess Haines or one of the other Redbird pitchers might have taken it upon themselves to dust off Babe or Lou, thereby reducing their potency at the barrier, although it is said that Babe, when dusted, is just as determined as before he ducks out of danger. Perhaps the same might be said of Gehrig, but my information has only to do with Ruth.

Well, there was no throwing at batters in the series and the absence of this reflects credit on the players involved. The fighting was intense, with lots of riding from the bench, but the scraps were free of the dangerous element of intentional throwing.

Besides the havoc they have raised with National League champs in the past two years, consider the financial grief Babe and Lou have left in their home run wake. Some day this week the Yankee and Cardinal owners will return hundreds of thousands of dollars to ticket holders largely because of the skill and power of the over-the-garden wall boys.

Wee Willie Sherdel was a pathetic pitcher as he gave way to Alexander in the seventh. Three times before in world series encounters the little southpaw pitched cleverly enough to win a majority of games, but he ran afoul of even better twirling on each occasion. Yesterday he gave two fine displays of his prowess in clinches, but the breaks came after the dispute on the quick-delivery pitch. Sherdel wasn't the same after Ruth had nicked him for the second homer.

Gehrig's feat of making four homers in one series matches the 1926 performance of the Bambino. The Lou owned another achievement that is not to be sneezed at: he walked five times in succession in the third and fourth battles, so fearful were the Redbird pitchers of the firstsacker after he had cracked out two successive home runs.

The consensus of opinions regarding the play of the Cardinals is that Andy High and Rabbit Maranville were the biggest stars among those who took part in every contest. Rabbit was the lone regular of the Redbird lineup to bat as high as .300, the veteran making four hits in 13 attempts for a mark of .308. The two Singer midgets played sterling ball in the field.

HARRY COOPER WINS CAMBRIDGE SPRINGS TITLE

WEST PENN CHAMPION RANKS SIXTH

CAMBRIDGE SPRINGS, Pa., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Harry Cooper, pro at the Meadowbrook Golf and Country Club, of Buffalo, won the third annual invitational tournament at the Riverside Golf Club here yesterday afternoon, when he came in with a brilliant 69 on his final round to tack up a card of 288 for the 72-hole journey.

One stroke back of Cooper was Eddie Williams, Westwood Country Club, Cleveland, who lost a chance to tie for first place when he pushed his tee shot into the woods on the seventeenth hole and had to take a penalty stroke.

Cooper was well on his way to a new course record when he ran into trouble on the ninth hole. Needing a four there for a 31 on the first nine, he overplayed the green with his second shot and then took a six when a water hydrant in the line of his shot bothered him, and he almost missed the ball on his third. He finished with a well-played birdie three on the eighteenth to give him a par 69 for the round.

The players who finished in the money were:

Cubs Swamp Sox; Take Series

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—The Chicago Cubs completely routed the White Sox in the final game of the city series here yesterday afternoon, swamping the Pale Hose, 13 to 2, and winning the series.

The Bruins climbed on Connally and Young Ed Walsh in the first, scoring six runs. Adkins took up the task and then crashed in the fifth when his teammates made all kinds of wild throws, fumbles and such things. At the end of this session the Cubs were out ahead by 12 runs. The Cubs annexed another in the seventh.

The Sox saved themselves from an ignominious whitewashing by poking in two runs in the last half of the ninth, a faint-hearted rally that went the way of all things when Metzler flied to Stephenson to end the series. The Cubs won four games and the Sox three. The score.

QUINN OPPOSES GRAYS IN FORBES FIELD GAME

Definite announcement has been made by Earl Mack, piloting the American League Barnstormers through their eight-game series with the Homestead Grays, that Jack Quinn, the 42-year-old pitching star of the Athletics, and the oldest active hurler in the major leagues, would be on the firing line against the Grays at Forbes Field at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Quinn worked two innings of the game at Philipsburg yesterday, when the Grays were nosed out, 6-5, for their first defeat in three starts. "Smoky Joe" Williams will oppose Quinn.

The Grays and Stars will appear at Butler tomorrow afternoon and will return to Forbes Field on Friday. The series will be concluded at Columbus, O., with games next Saturday and Sunday.

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

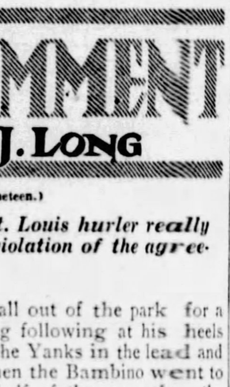
tators it seemed clear that the St. Louis hurler really had resorted to a quick pitch in violation of the agreement.

RUTH then proceeded to hit the ball out of the park for a homer that tied the score, Gehrig following at his heels with another four-base clout that put the Yanks in the lead and spelled the beginning of the end. When the Bambino went to his position in left-field for the last half of the seventh, the bleacherites booed him unmercifully and a few rowdies went so far as to hurl pop bottles in his direction. But the demonstration never feazed the wonder man of baseball. He kidded back at his tormentors and played more brilliantly than ever during the remainder of the game, hitting another homer in the eighth and winding up the game and the series with a remarkable running one-hand catch of a foul fly from Frank Frisch's bat right off the railing of the grandstand.

Ruth came out of the series with a flock of records to his credit that cause him to stand out more prominently than ever as the greatest baseball figure of all time.

TO begin with, he played in his ninth world s[illegible]s, a greater number than any other player in history. [illegible] top of that he made the highest batting average ever hung [illegible] in a classic, making 10 hits in 16 times at bat for a mar[illegible].625, beating the old record of .545, set by Hank Gowdy [illegible]he Braves in 1914. He stretched his total of runs scored in series games to 31, his total of runs knocked in during title competition of all time to 29, and his total of world series home runs to 15, marks never approached by any other player.

THE Babe also equaled his own record of three home runs in one world series game, duplicating his feat of 1926 on the same grounds, and tied the 1925 record of Joe Harris by making 22 total bases on hits during a series. Harris made his mark in seven games and Ruth equaled it in four contests. Ruth's great slugging mate, Lou Gehrig, also hung up a new record by knocking in nine runs during the series. The old mark was eight, set by Bob Meusel of the Yanks in 1923.



Ernest Orsatti

Aside from being the only club ever to win two straight world series in four games and to win eight title games in a row, the Yankee club, as a whole, set new records of five home runs in one series game, nine home runs in one series and 32 total bases on hits in one game. The last mentioned record was made yesterday. The former mark was 26, held by the Hugmen themselves.

IN a last desperate effort to bolster his force and bring the Cardinals to life, Manager McKechnie made two changes in his regular lineup yesterday, hoping at least to avert a clean sweep. He sent Earl Smith behind the plate to supplant Jimmy Wilson and put Ernest Orsatti in center field to take the place of Taylor Douthit, who, like Chick Hafey and Jim Bottomley had been weak sisters in the series.

The two men improved the St. Louis club's play to some extent, Smith making three hits and Orsatti turning in a couple of fine catches in addition to hitting safely once. But the improvement was far from being sufficient to give the hopelessly outclassed Cards a chance to check the rush of the relentless Yanks.

RABBIT MARANVILLE and Andy High were about the only members of the Redbird outfit who played high-class and heads-up baseball throughout the engagement that resulted so disastrously to the National League champions.

12 RULES FOR SUCCESS
by GENE TUNNEY
RETIRED HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION

NO. XI—ECONOMY—BUT NOT PARSIMONY.

AMERICANS are the greatest spenders and the highest livers in the world. People in other countries talk of pennies, we speak always in dollars. The best is none too good for us and we must keep up with the procession. We are a nation of appearances. Nowhere in the world do people eat so much, dress so well and enjoy so many pleasures.

This is a good sign. It means ambition and prosperity, but it has its dangers, especially among the people who are just shaping their lives. Our extensive credit system and our elaborate weekly payment plans are an invitation and a temptation to trade in futures.

There are thousands of young people in all our great cities who scheme to have but never plan to pay. Eventually there comes a time of reckoning and embarrassment comes knocking at their door. Their social pleasures are all upset and their daily business obligations are neglected or indifferently done and their earning power is imperiled.

DEBT CAUSES WORRY

To be a good fellow, a "swell" dresser, a lavish entertainer is all to the good except when these things are obtained by careless financial juggling.

No young man can do his best if he is worried and perplexed over his finances. Money is the most pestiferous disturber in life. There is not much use of having a pocket if there is a hole in it. You may hold a position and collect a salary at the end of the week, but if every dollar of your earnings has to go to pay obligations already incurred the shackles still are upon you and if that system is continued week after week you are always in the chain-gang of debt.

No man is a free man who is always involved in debt and lodges corners to save meeting a man to whom he owes money. To be perpetually behind, or in debt, breaks a man's spirit and humiliates him more in his own eyes than in the eyes of his creditors.

Nothing tones up a man's life so much as his ability to pay his debts and meet his obligations and look the world square in the face. This can be accomplished only by economy. A man must live within his means, he must learn to do without. To borrow money seriously involves friendship and narrows a man's circle of those who are glad to meet him. Better look shabby than shamefaced. Better sit in the park where it does not cost than sit in a theater on borrowed money. Better eat plain food and know you yourself are paying for it out of your own earnings than have a fine meal with a friend and be on pins and needles lest the man you borrowed from should walk in and take a table next to yours.

KEEP SELF-RESPECT

No man can keep his self-respect and not pay his debts or follow the borrowing habit until people hate to see him come around. There is a happy medium between economy and extravagance.

Do not fear the ridicule of those who may call you a tightwad. It is to be called a dead beat.

A man was told to save his earnings for a rainy day. When the rent came due and his landlord called he said he had no money. "Well," said the landlord, "I thought you had saved something for a rainy day." "So I had," said the man, "but yesterday it rained and I spent it all."

Do not be foolish, save your money, pay your debts, do not borrow, keep on good terms with yourself and you will not have difficulty keeping the admiration of others.

This has been the rule of my life. I have endeavored to avoid stinginess, but I always have paid my debts, never indulge in extravagances and even in earlier days always laid by something that I might not be despised by myself.

Breadon Denies Cards Are to Be Sold

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Rumors that the St. Louis Cardinals, defeated in the final world series game yesterday, are to be sold or the franchise transferred, have been denied by President Sam Breadon. He says he is in baseball to stay. "I want to deny those rumors right now and I want them to stay denied," he said.

PIRATES CUT IN FOR $400 APIECE

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Although the total players' pool of $332,309.52 set a new record for the world series, each winning share drawn down by the Yankee regulars, $5,531.91, will fall somewhat short of the record individual total of more than $6,000 established in 1923, when the Hugmen also won the prize. The losing St. Louis Cardinals, dividing their money into only 28 parts, each will receive a check for $4,197.37.

Of the $332,309.52 in the pool, $293,920.98 goes to the players on the two world series conters and the remaining $125,920.98 to the six first division clubs in the two leagues. The winning Yankees divide 60 per cent of the contenders' pool, or $176,289.37, and the Cardinals 40 per cent, or $117,526.25.

The fourth place pool amounts to $10,493.41 for the Pirates and Senators.

The Pirates will divide their rake-off into 27 shares of about $389 each. Twenty-four men will receive full shares and the remaining three shares will be divided among Secretary S. E. Watters, scouts, trainer and groundkeeper.

The Yankees voted to deduct $4,800 from their money to reward Eddie Bennet, the mascot; Mrs. Urban Shocker, widow of the former Yankee pitcher, and various secretaries and officials. The rest then was to be divided into 31 shares, with full shares to go to Tom Zachary and Fred Heimach, who joined the club late in the season, as well as to Wiley Moore, the star pitcher of last season, who quit the club incapacitated three weeks ago. Miller Huggins, of course, cuts in for a full share, as do the coaches, Charles O'Leary and Arthur Fletcher.

The Cardinal money will carry full shares for 26 players and the manager, Bill McKechnie, and half shares for Ernest Orsatti, the Minneapolis recruit, and Clarence Lloyd, club secretary.

YANKEES BREAK NINE, EQUAL FOUR MARKS

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—The New York Yankees, poor prematurely pitied cripples that they were, only broke or equaled 13 world series records in crushing the hapless St. Louis Cardinals in the four games of the 1928 series for the baseball championship.

The following new records were established by the Yankees:

They made nine home runs in a world series, even though it was as short as any on record.

They made five home runs in one game, yesterday's, Ruth getting three and Gehrig and Durst one apiece.

They won their second world championship in four straight games.

They ran their string of consecutive victories to eight.

They hit two homers in one inning, in both the first and last games.

They went through two consecutive world series using only one pitcher to a game.

They forced the opposing club to use more than one pitcher in every game of the two series.

Babe Ruth compiled a batting average of .625 for the series.

The following records were equaled:

Miller Huggins has won three world championships now, the same number as John McGraw and Connie Mack.

Babe Ruth once more hit three homers in one series game.

Lou Gehrig equaled Babe Ruth's record of four homers in a single series.

YANKEES

boomed his boyish face streaming with prespiration. "Wasn't that a corker?"

And he proudly strutted around the dressing room.

As the hilarious players began shedding their uniforms, Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, strolled into the room to offer his congratulations to the winners. Landis first went to Huggins, then to Ruth, Gehrig and down the line.

After greeting the Yanks, Landis went to the dressing room of the depressed Cardinals to offer his condolences.

Enough policemen to form a Mexican regiment stood guard outside the umpires' dressing room as a precautionary measure to protect Cy Pfirman, the umpire, who made the quick return decision. But no demonstrative crowd gathered.

SOUTH HIGH GIRLS BEAT ALLDERDICE SWIMMERS

South High mermaids added another to their string of victories when both the seniors and juniors yesterday defeated two Allderdice teams. The first score was 43-14 the junior score was 36½-16½.

The South seniors took five first places and five second places, leaving the third places to Allderdice. Miss Manula won the plunge with 52 feet 6 inches and the breast stroke race.

COUNTY LINKS WIN PRAISE

James Moore, superintendent of county parks; Paul B. Riis, director of the parks; John Jay Burke, public links committeeman of the United States Golf Association, and Al McBride, pro at the Schenley Park golf course, inspected the links at the North Park yesterday and were very much pleased with the progress being made on the new 18-hole layout.

They were enthusiastic in their praise of the course and said the golfers of the district would be surprised with its championship qualities. It will have a length of about 6,400 yards and will be well trapped and otherwise made difficult and likely will be ready for play the latter part of next season.

There will be little to choose between the two courses in the matter of furnishing a test of skill, Burke said. Last week, the party made a tour of the South course and was equally elated over its possibilities.

The Old Alibi

SCORNFUL. Elaine swept out of the room. Dick lowered his paper and stared after her, thinking.

It was an old alibi, this being too tired to play. Other men weren't. They found real relaxation in their evenings . . . made friendships that helped them all through life.

Yet work for Dick meant hard work. Elaine never realized that. He had to drive himself, and he came home evenings cross, irritable—completely done up.

HE'D tried so many things to get himself into shape. Ordinary laxatives, from "health foods" that acted uncertainly after weeks, to cathartics that wracked his system. And he distrusted them all . . .

Feen-a-mint is different!

In the first place, it's just like a bit of delicious chewing gum You don't swallow it hastily—you chew it!

This is important—because you chew it, its tasteless yet almost magically effective laxative principle is released slowly, the way science meant it to be released. It actually becomes a part of the digestive fluids—does not disturb digestion.

Thus instead of striking a blow without warning, as it were, Feen-a-mint gently helps the system to help itself. It works with the body, not against it!

Feen-a-mint is science's answer to the well-nigh universal problem of constipation. It won't torture you with griping pains. It won't poison or weaken the system. It won't enslave you to laxative pills. Get Feen-a-mint at your druggist's. Correct constipation now!

McKechnie Trade Yarn Myth, Breadon Says

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—A report sent out of St. Louis after the final game of the world series yesterday that Bill McKecnie was to be deposed as manager of the Cardinals was emphatically denied by President Sam Breadon of the St. Louis club.

"McKechnie won the pennant for us, didn't he?" Breadon responded, when questioned as to the truth of the rumor.

"I don't know where this report could have come from. It is absolutely unfounded. We have never given such a move a thought and it is entirely out of order."

Pitt, Tech, Dukes Drill

By JESS CARVER.

THE same line that proved itself impervious to the attacks of West Virginia Wesleyan and the Haskell Indians, medium heavy and fast charging, will be counted upon heavily by West Virginia as the Mountaineers battle the Pitt Panthers here Saturday.

Since the opening game with Davis-Elkins, which resulted in a win for the Hurricane, Coach Rodgers has made four changes in the makeup of his forward wall. He first replaced Hageberg at center with the smarter, more compact Carrico. He put Lang at end in the place of Garrett and he replaced Lewis with Scott at a tackle and put Red Gordon at Hogue's place at guard.

The relegation of some of these chaps to the second team detracted from the weight of the starting lineup, but it apparently has not affected the speed or effectiveness of the line. Those in the positions now make up for their lack of weight by aggressiveness and skill.

MOUNTAINEERS HAVE EDGE

As far as being outweighed by the Pitt line is concerned, it need trouble the Mountaineers but little. If anything, the advantage will be with West Virginia, for the Panther wall is far from hefty. There will be little to choose between the two as far as weight is concerned Saturday.

Pitt was given more or less of a loosening up workout on Monday and yesterday was drilled on aerial defense. Some new plays, designed for use against the Mountaineers were given the team, the first tricky formations it has been served this fall.

Carnegie Tech will be minus one guard and one halfback for the Thiel game. The loss of Schnupp and Eyth, coming at this time is not as serious as it would have been had these babies waited a week to run into their injuries and be put on the shelf for the Wash-Jeff contest.

PLEBES PLAY W. VA. FROSH

Coach Bob Waddell anticipates little difficulty in filling their positions for the game with Thiel. The loss of Eyth, a sweet running halfback, may slow down the Tartan offense, especially since the defense that will be presented by Tommy Holleran's club will be the best Tech has experienced so far this fall.

In a preliminary tussle to the varsity encounter, Paul Allison's plebes will square off with the West Virginia freshmen. The Tartan youngsters took one on the chin from Bob Mittinger's Kiski eleven last Saturday.

Johnny Holohan, the decorous graduate manager of athletics at Duquesne, is busy lining up special trains to carry the Duke supporters to Washington Saturday to see the Dukes mix it up with Wash-Jeff. Regardless of how the game turns out, John is set on having a crowd present.

The footballers are getting some heavy drills. The ends, who looked very good against St. Thomas, were the objects of the particular attention of the coaches in the drill yesterday. A great deal will depend on the play of the wingmen Saturday. If they are able to stop the President attack at the terminals, Coach Layden is confident that his beefy linemen will be able to check the line smashes of Gilchrist and the off tackle drive of other Red and Black backs.

ZBYSZKO IS WINNER IN BOUT WITH HAGEN

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(INS.)—Wladek Zbyszko, one of the ancient Poles, beat George Hagen, of Kansas, at the latter's own game in the final finish match here last night when he threw the latter in one hour.

Hagan was by far the stronger of the two, but Zbyszko proved much the smarter.

WALTONS OPPOSE PLAN FOR SUNDAY FISHING

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—The question of Sunday fishing threw the closing session of the Pennsylvania division of the Izaak Walton League meeting here into a turmoil.

Raised by the Germantown Chapter, a proposal to permit fishing on Sundays was turned down by the League's resolutions committees but eager fisherman attempted to approve it over the committee's veto on the floor. An argument ensued and ended only when the question was refered back to the local chapters. The delegate-fishermen argued the same problem at last year's meeting.

Profio on Motor Square Program

DOMINICK PROFIO, the hard-hitting former amateur welterweight star, who recently made his professional debut against Jackie Murray at McKeesport, scoring a flock of knockdowns and winning handily, has been signed to box one of the four-round battles on the Motor Square Garden card next Monday night. His opponent will be Tiger Joe Randall, Negro, of Elizabeth, Pa.

All but one of the bouts on the program now have been arranged, that is the opening event. Phil Coldstein meets Johnny Mellow, of Detroit, and Rudy Ceder boxes Tony LaRose, of Cincinnati, in the two eight-round bouts that make up the double windup, and Jimmy Belmont and Tug Phillips will meet in the six-rounder.

The McKeesport fans are keyed up over the return battle between Joe Packo, of Toledo, and Ike McFowler, of Johnstown, heavyweights which will be held in the Palisades arena tomorrow night. If the bout is as good as their former meeting, in which McFowler got the decision, it will be a pip. Packo injured a hand in that battle and also claimed he really knocked out McFowler with a body blow which the latter contended was foul.

Linn Jordan and Bobby Holmes Negro middleweights, will box the semi-final to the Packo-McFowler battle. Al Waldeck will oppose Battling Gizzy in the second event and Johnny Brown and Larry Marsilli are booked for the opener.

Howard Mayberry and Mickey Hart are matched for the 10-round windup in the Washington (Pa.) Gardens Monday night.

Neal Clisby and John Lester Johnson, veteran Negro heavyweights, top an all-Negro bill at Los Angeles tonight. Johnson once defeated Jack Dempsey in the latter's early days in New York. He lost to Clisby in a bout on the coast less than a year ago.

Paulino Uzcudun and Roberto Roberti will meet in a heavyweight elimination bout at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, one week from tonight.

Short Putts

THE Traffic Club of Pittsburgh is holding its final one-day tournament of the season at the Highland Country Club today. Play is at 18 holes medal.

The Hotel Club and Restaurant Golf Association held a tourney at Edgewood, and the Bond Club of Pittsburgh competed at Rolling Rock yesterday.

H. A. Herrman won the annual September golf tournament of the Pup's Foot Golf Club, defeating W. J. Horner, 4 and 3, in the final round. In the finals of the second, third, fourth and fifth sixteens, respectively, H. H. McCullough defeated B. soby, 4 and 3; O. Needham defeated J. D. Crawford, 10 and 9; J. R. Weaver defeated W. E. Ferguson, 2 and 1; H. C. Beschel defeated J. C. Ankeny, 4 and 3. Harry W. McIntosh provided the prizes.

FIGHT RESULTS

At San Antonio — Sergt. Sammy Baker knocked out (technical) Pete August, 6 rounds; Jimmy McDermott knocked out Kid Palma, 5 rounds.

At Chicago—Jimmy Byrne defeated Johnny Squires, 10 rounds; Ernie Owens defeated Tommy Squires, 10 rounds.

At Cincinnati — Mike Dundee knocked out Billy Kennedy, 1 round; Freddie Miller knocked out Ray Fitzpatrick, 5 rounds; Lou Friedman defeated Speedy Reynolds, 6 rounds; Young Nanci defeated John Phurman, 4 rounds.

At Indianapolis — Eddie Anderson knocked out Tommy Crowley, 1 round; Tate Langford and Sammy Price drew, 8 rounds.

At Reading—Babe McCorgary and Vincent Forgione drew, 8 rounds; Bobby Risden knocked out (technical) Charley Matz, 7 rounds; Mickey Doyle defeated Jackie Palmer, 4 rounds; Bill Peters defeated Tiny Hoffner, 4 rounds; Izzy Slabin knocked out Johnny Corbett, 1 round.

WORLD SERIES

ship clubs. His hitting in the other three struggles was a big feature, but he rose to new heights in socking three out of the lot in the finale. His exploit gave him a total of 13 homers for world series play. Besides this record he established a new batting average of .625 for the titular competition. Babe made 10 hits in 16 times at bat.

The homers of the Bambin all out of the park at the same angle of right-field, the last one falling atop of the roof before it fell into Grand avenue, the other two were drivers that cleared the pavilion.

Gehrig's homer that put the Yanks out in front was his fourth of the series, no other player matching this performance. The slugging of the two Sultans left the Redbirds and their followers stunned. After Babe had driven his third wallop out of the park, the bleacher fans, who had ridden him to the extent of throwing a few bottles, gave him a big ovation. He was simply irresistible.

Waite Hoyt and Sherdel locked in a slab duel in the last game. The honors were just about even until the seventh when Babe and Lou started to do their stuff. Cedric Durst, who relieved Ben Paschall after Sherdel had been shelled off the mound, nicked Alexander for a homer that gave the Yankees five for the day.

FORMER BUCS HELP

With Earl Smith and Rabbit Maranville playing stellar roles, the Cardinals offered a fine front through the bigger part of the last fight. The two former Pirates made five hits, Smith connecting for three blows.

On defensive, Maranville turned in a one-hand assist with the bases loaded and two out in the fifth. Rabbit snared a mean hopper in one hand and threw to Frisch for a force play. Had the ball eluded Rabbit two or three tallies would have crossed the barrier. The Redbirds enjoyed a one-run lead at the time.

Manager McKechnie used Ernie Orsatti in centerfield in place of Douthit and Smith instead of Wilson in the last game in an effort to increase his offensive. The idea worked out, and Orsatti also featured on defense.

The Italian recruit scored the first run of the game in the third after Ruth had lost his fly in the sun. The left went for a double and High beat out a bunt. Frisch flied to Paschal to score Orsatti. Ruth tied it up in the fourth with his first homer.

Maranville put the Cardinals ahead in the fourth by scoring from second on a bad throw by Hoyt. Smith started the fourth with a hit, but was forced by Maranville. Koenig threw high in trying to double Rabbit and the shortstop moved to second. After Sherdel had flied out, Hoyt tried to catch Rabbit off the middle bag. Nobody covered and the ball went to center. Maranville hustled home, he beating the ball by a close margin. There was no further scoring until the outbreak of the Yankees in the seventh.

When You Place Orders For Stocks This Happens.

By B. C. FORBES

WHAT happens when an order is given to buy stock?

Never before were so many orders being given. Since January 1 sales on the New York Stock Exchange have reached the unprecedented total of $64,000,000,000, figuring on $100 par per share.

This total is practically 50 per cent higher than a year ago and far ahead of the turnover for the whole of last year.

On the New York Curb market, the second largest in America, transactions represent a ($199) par value of almost $15,000,000,000, more than 100 per cent over last year.

INCIDENTALLY, bond sales on the stock exchange show a substantial decrease. Average bond quotations, too, are lower than 12 months ago, whereas stocks are up more than $20 a share.

HOW an order to buy stock is executed is lucidly explained in a new booklet issued by the New York Curb Market.

John Jones, an investor, while in the Philadelphia branch of the New York Curb market of John Smith & Co., fills out an order form, instructing the firm to buy 100 shares of Standard Oil of Indiana "at the market."

This is recorded by a clerk and telegraphed to the main office in New York, which transmits it at once to the exchange floor over a private telephone. The floor telephones are served by clerks employed by members.

THE floor telephone clerk writes the order on an order slip and then presses a button in his booth which operates a number on a large annunciator board, four of which are conspicuously situated on the walls of the Exchange building. A number has been assigned to the floor member of John Smith & Co., and the flash signals him to his booth.

There are 16 posts on the floor with different stocks assigned to them. The broker knows instantly the post where Standard Oil of Indiana is located. At this post he hears "Indiana" being offered at 70¼ and another broker bidding 70¼ for it. He at once says to the broker offering the stock at 70¼, "take it," and the deal is consummated.

No contract is exchanged. All trades are made in this apparently informal way, yet no broker has ever tried to get out of such a transaction.

THE broker sends to his telephone clerk a memorandum that he has bought 100 Standard Oil of Indiana at 70¼ from William Brown (another broker). The clerk immediately telephones the report to the office, which telegraphs it to the Philadelphia branch office.

All this takes remarkably little time. Orders given a thousand miles away sometimes have been executed within a minute.

THE broker, when he said "take it," obligates himself to receive, before 2:15 p. m. on the following full business day, a certificate for 100 shares of Standard Oil of Indiana stock and to pay for it $7,025.

The Philadelphia branch office mails Mr. Jones, the customer, a memorandum that it has bought "for your account and risk," 100 shares of Standard Oil of Indiana at 70¼.

If Mr. Jones is buying the stock outright, he will pay, on the day following, the full purchase price, plus the broker's commission, and can instruct John Smith & Co. to have the certificate transferred to his name.

Should Mr. Jones sell at a later date, the broker will pay him the proceeds after deduction of the commission and the Federal and state sales taxes.

STATIONED in the "Standard Oil crowd" at the time Mr. Jones' stock was purchased, was one of the reporters on the exchange. He makes a memorandum of the trade on a slip of paper, quickly hands it to a messenger, who is close by, and he places the slip before a ticker operator stationed at his sending machine on the floor, where the time of sale is stamped on it.

The transaction is flashed over the ticker to many cities.

When Mr. Jones gave his order it was supposed he had the $7,025 to pay for it. However, it happened that he had only $3,000. But the transaction was not cancelled. He had his option either to buy outright or on "margin" with the idea of selling at a profit or holding the stock as an investment with the expectation of paying the balance from time to time.

If the stock had been bought outright, the certificate would have been delivered and the deal closed; but Mr. Jones, having bought on "margin," the stock certificate is held by the broker as collateral to secure the unpaid balance.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The raw sugar market was steady but no sales were reported early today and prices were unchanged at 5.93c for spots duty paid. Buyers this morning offered 3.93c delivered, with holders asking 3.96c.

The raw sugar futures market was extremely quiet during the forenoon sessions and after opening unchanged to 1 point higher on covering and some buying by houses with Cuban connection, prices held around that level for the balance of the forenoon. With the unsettled tone in the refined market, traders were inclined to limit fresh commitments and await further developments.

As announced yesterday, all refiners reduced their prices 15 points for fine granulated at the opening of the basis of 5.20c to 5.25c. A better inquiry was reported at the inside level, probably promoted by the announcement that one refiner would advance prices 5 points tomorrow.

STOCKS WHIRL UP IN WILD SESSION

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Speculation for the advance was resumed on a broad scale in today's stock market, the rally in high priced industrial specialties being conducted with considerable violence. Extreme gains in the active issues ranged from 1 to 13½ points, with at lease a score selling at record high levels. Trading was conducted at a brisk pace, with the ticker falling 20 minutes or more behind the market by early afternoon.

The rapidity of the advance indicated an over-sold position in many stocks, "shorts" being driven to cover by the appearance of large buying orders. Merger, recapitalization and higher dividend rumors accompanied the advance in many issues.

Call money was again in plentiful supply at the renewal figure of 6½ per cent. Time money also displayed an easier undertone. Wall street apparently was not disturbed by the statement of Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank, that "credit expansion resulting from increasing stock prices is fairly close to the safe limit."

Outside the stock market, chief interest centered in the monthly tonnage report of the United States Steel Corporation showing a gain of nearly 75,000 tons in unfilled orders last month. Plants of the corporation are now working close to 90 per cent of capacity.

Allied Chemical, Montgomery-Ward and International Harvester, all up more than 13 points and the first two at new high records, led the advance in stock prices. Warren Brothers jumped 11 points, Curtiss and American Smelting 9, Radio 8⅝, Mullins Corporation and Texas and Pacific 8 each. Dunhill, American Express, General Refractories, Goodyear, Motor Products, Purity Baking preferred and Keith-Albee preferred sold 5 to nearly 7 points higher.

Reading, New York Central, Pittsburgh and West Virginia and Delaware and Hudson, all up 3 points or more, were active in the rail group. Railroad equipments were soft, Lima Locomotive breaking 4 points and Pullman and Pressed Steel Car each reacting 1½.

CARNEGIE METALS FIRM, NARROW MOVES IN FUELS

Securities prices on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange continued to work back and forth in a narrow range during today's session, with quotations showing a slight upward tendency.

Pronounced strength in the New York market during the early part of the session did not communicate itself to the local list although there was a noticeable firming up in offered prices as the "big board" stocks pushed higher.

Carnegie Metals was in moderate demand and a fractional advance over yesterday's close, responding to the strong tone displayed by the metal and mining shares in New York yesterday and today. There has been some talk here of resumption of clique operations in Carnegie but so far on the move there has been enough selling to prevent anything in the nature of a spectacular rise.

The fuel issues showed no important changes from yesterday's closing levels. Arkansas common was quiet around 3¼.

Witherow Steel Company declared an initial dividend on the second preferred stock, together with the regular payment on the first preferred, but there was no demonstration either in the first preferred or common. The second preferred stock is not listed, but the two latter issues are on the board here.

During the afternoon session there was an increase in activity in Arkansas Gas with several hundred shares changing hands at 3½ and the stock giving evidence of re-accumulation.

Blaw Knox Steel also came into the market in larger volume than for some time, but the price held around 120, unchanged from the last previous quotation.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The cotton market opened barely steady at a decline of 10 to 15 points under southern and local selling or liquidation promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables and reports of good weather in the South. December eased off to 18.80c or 12 points net lower and about 60 points below the high price of Monday afternoon, but more trade buying was in evidence at this decline and the market just about recovered its initial losses by the end of the first half hour on covering. The weekly report of the weather bureau was considered no more favorable than expected and its failure to stimulate selling probably led to some rebuying by yesterday's sellers. Private cables reported continental buying supplied by hedging and liquidation in the Liverpool market and said that business in cotton cloths and yarns was slow in developing.

Trading was comparatively quiet later in the morning, with fluctuations narrow and irregular. After the recovery from the early decline, prices slipped off slightly but the market at midday was steady at net losses to 4 to 5 points

Location for Airport Is Officially Approved

The airport site on Lebanon Church road, recommended by a special committee of the Chamber of Commerce, has been approved by the County Commissioners, bringing decision to a matter that has long been considered. We now are in a position to go ahead and develop the 347 acres recommended to be acquired. Plans contemplate an airport that will be given the highest rating by the United States Department of Commerce.

At the proceedings Council was represented by a special committee and it was announced that the city will vote $500,000 toward the project just as soon as the county acquires the land. The motion to take possession was framed in such a way as to provide for the acquisition of any additional property as may be found necessary later.

Pittsburgh at last is taking a step in aerial transportation that has been looked forward to for many months. It is well.

Gridiron Sport Given Recognition by Council

Football now is official in Pittsburgh. It has the recognition of the city, Council having designated Thursday, October 27, as Pittsburgh Football Day. On that occasion the elevens of Pitt and Tech will struggle for the local gridiron championship in the Stadium. All of which is in accordance with a resolution adopted by Council, which also stipulates that a trophy be purchased, this symbol of supremacy to pass annually to the victorious team.

Very commendable, Messrs. Councilmen. The action is not without some kind of precedent. We read that the state-cities of Rome and Athens not only supported athletics and arts, but provided amusement for the populace. Mighty historic heroes were developed under such circumstances.

Pitt and Tech, of course, need no special trophy to spur them to their utmost of endeavor—the spirit of rivalry takes care of that. But there is something about the possession of a trophy that develops a sentimental urge. The America's cup, for instance. Reflect upon the great strides in speed boat building that have been made as a result of England's ambition to regain the cup bestowed upon a Yankee sailboat many years ago and of America's determination to retain it.

Three Fine Young Men

Give Them Planes, They Will Do the Rest.

THREE AMERICAN AIRMEN—LINDBERGH, LIEUTENANT WILLIAM C. CORNELIUS AND LIEUTENANT IRWIN A. WOODRING.

Everybody in the world knows Lindbergh, from Greenland to South Africa, from Maine to Peking, and Lindbergh would tell you, "The two boys standing with we in this picture are just as good as I am."

They are the two survivors of a famous trio of army fliers. The third was killed, whereupon Lindbergh took his place in army air maneuvers, doing dangerous stunts, etc.; and note this stitious, Lindbergh's flying stunts were done in ERED 13. He is not superstitious.

asure to look at these fearless young American faces.

The world produces no better fliers, no men of greater daring.

On such men as these, and there are, fortunately, hundreds of thousands like them in the United States working in garages, in stores, on farms, this nation would rely safely in time of war.

We have the MEN. If Uncle Sam would supply them with PLANES this nation would have nothing to fear from foreign attack.

The trouble is that we haven't GOT the planes. Our nation, richest in the world by far, relies on individual initiative with its limited capital to improve and produce airplanes for the nation.

Uncle Sam himself now should be manufacturing, experimenting, bearing the brunt of first cost. After that let private individuals manufacture, but let Uncle Sam spend money needed for constant improvement.

P. S.—Since the above was written one of these brave young men, Lieut. Cornelius, has met death while flying.

Two Minds With But a Single Thought

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—A most perplexing thing about big executive jobs in New York is how easy they are to fill in emergency. It is trite that opportunity makes the man, but judging from a few incidents recently that hits the nail on its widely discussed head.

The $100,000 a year executive of an established concern a year ago decided he had enough of business and its anxieties and resigned over night. Grave conferences were held as to his successor. Tempting offers were made to several recognized executives.

In the end, and as a mere temporary expedient, the son-in-law of the founder was drafted into service. He was one of those tennis playing enthusiasts with buck-teeth and oiled hair usually found in flanneled ease on country club porches. He seemed disturbed by his new duties. And everybody tittered.

Yet in six months he almost completely revolutionized the business, and at the end of the year doubled its profits. As this is written two branch factories are being built, and the young man is no longer seen among gay haunts that used to know him so well.

The New York theater has an example of a tank-touring press agent who was given the opportunity to produce what was considered a mediocre play on Broadway and became one of the leading producers in a year. Two of the shrewdest movie financiers were second-rate newspaper reporters.

A chain store organizer who had been bounced from seven successive jobs became a $1,500 a week executive in three months. He accepted the job for a month without salary to show what he could do. "I had no idea I could do it. It was a desperate chance," he said.

Perhaps the most notable example of all was that of a shipping clerk in a safety razor concern. He heard the general manager had resigned and wrote a letter which impressed the owner sufficiently to give him a trial. That was two years ago. Today he is a partner in the concern.

Many chuckle at the "Up From Nowhere" heroes of real life featured in the go-to-it-and-win magazines, and yet they offer more actual romance than heroes in fiction. If fictionized, we would likely sniff it wasn't possible.

Life continues its prankish disillusionments. As one who believed the fan mail of a movie star was delivered daily in trucks, I have the word of a recognized star that his weekly average is never more than 100 letters. Many columnists receive more than that.

Then there is that delusion of mash notes sent to beautiful stage ladies. They are so rare that when received the recipient goes gadding about gaily showing them to whoever will read. Anna Held in her day was said to receive more than any other actress and this was due largely to a provocative song sung with much rolling of eyes at the audience. It rather invited flirtatious advances and many took her seriously.

Writes a New Yorker: "Exactly 30 years ago I went with my wife to a restaurant on Fourteenth street serving a special dinner for 25 cents. Last night I paid $5 each for a dinner not so good including the spinach."

And you were lucky you didn't get a shifting or so of sand in the spinach these days.

Many of us who remember the 65-cent dinners of 15 years ago with a bottle of free red or white wine—but why revive all that? There are some still living who can even remember when druggists were druggists.

* * *

Indeed I can remember back before the pocket lighter when it was natty to strike a match on the heel without losing a step. but I don't want to play this anymore. I'm going back too far.

The Censor

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

Mr. James N. Rosenberg, in an address before the Bar Association of the City of New York, gives an interesting review of the censorship idea.

Most people think it is a new thing, an outbreak of the Puritanical conscience.

On the contrary it is very old. Censorship has been defined by the courts as the power to lay a "previous restraint" on publication.

It is a power that up to recent times has been steadily repudiated by American practice. The censor theory implies that a man should be prevented from doing wrong; the modern theory is that he should be left free, but punished if his actions are wrong.

The censor idea is old. The censor in ancient Rome was a feared and mighty magistrate. He was a despotic superintendent of private as well as public conduct and morals.

Freedom from censorship is a modern conception. "Though many European revolutions have determined to break down the censor's shackles, it is a comic travesty that no sooner has a new government been set up than a censorship, severer far than its predecessor, has been established.'"

Censorship is still widely practiced in Europe. It was used by the Inquisition, the French Revolution, Napoleon and Metternich. The early Puritans of Massachusetts practiced it, but gave it up in 1725.

Plato said that in an ideal state the first thing will be to establish a censorship of the writers.

Sir Thomas Moore proposed a rigid censorship in his "Utopia."

A few of the victims of censorship are Copernicus, Galileo, Chaucer, Spenser, Hobbes, Macaulay, Mill, Gibbon, Heine, Hugo, Zola and Renan.

Milton's "Areopagitica" was published in the Seventeenth Century. It began the battle to end the British censorship bills and the detested power of a star chamber of laying a "previous restraint.'"

Blackstone says: "The liberty of the press is indeed essential to the nature of a free state, and consists in laying no previous restraints upon publications, and not in freedom from censor for criminal matter when published."

The United States Supreme Court said: "The purpose of the Constitution is to prevent restraint upon publication as practiced by other governments. It does not prevent subsequent punishment."

Yet in spite of this film censorship has been attempted in 30 states and adopted in seven.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Reality of Luck

IT SEEMS an incomprehensible thing for science to be found bowing before the throne of luck, but how otherwise can one interpret what Dr. D. W. Swann, of the Franklin Institute, Philadelphia, is reported to have said at the recent meeting of the American Chemical Society. Read this:

"Science heretofore," he declared, "has always felt that everything that happened could be traced to some cause which in turn always had a definite effect. But now we know that the results of many purely physical phenomena, such as the transmission of heat, depend upon what science inadequately calls the 'laws of probability,' which is just another name for chance or luck."

Specifically, Dr. Swann referred to the electrical charges borne by about one in a hundred million of the molecules of the atmosphere, concerning which he said:

"There is no apparent reason why one of these molecules rather than any other should have this electrical charge—which makes possible lightning, rain, thunder, and other happenings of the air. Science has been able to account for this in no other way than by explaining the phenomenon in terms of luck, which has now become a new type of scientific thought."

Everybody who tries to keep track of theoretical advances in science will recognize the fittingness of this description of the "new type of scientific thought." More and more the "laws of probability" are called upon to make unanswerable questions vanish out of view like the climbing boy in the Hindoo rope trick.

Humanity reaching blindly for the real foundation of things expects science to flood the mystery with clear light. But as the search begins to reach the depths the light becomes only "darkness visible." There chance stands grinning, and science only gives it a new name, which leaves it as incomprehensible as it was before. The only way out appears to be that suggested by Dr. Swann, viz., to accept chance or luck as the final explanation of certain phenomena.

It is not a new philosophy of knowledge that is thus set forth, but it is a return to a philosophy as old as human thinking. Coming around by way of the electrons and the mysterious constitution of the atom, science runs against the old conclusion that at the bottom something must be left unexplained by human reason. In studying the "fundamental entity in all physics," which is the electron, the idea of definitely controlled cause has to give way to the laws of chance. "No longer do we say," remarks Dr. Swann, "that if an electron finds itself in an electric field a certain consequence will definitely follow. We say only that there is a probability that such and such will take place."

In what sense is luck a reality? The gambler believes in a kind of personality of luck. For him it is a sort of god that he both worships and fears. He worships it for its power and fears it for its capriciousness, for his fundamental axiom about luck is that "there is nothing certain about it except that it is bound to change."

Science knows that, too. Science knows very well that though the "law" of probability asserts that a certain number on a die has only one chance in six of turning up on the first throw, yet it may turn up in two or more successive throws, or may not turn up once in a dozen throws. So refuge is taken behind the "generality" of the law, and it is affirmed that in an "infinite" number of throws the number will turn up just once in six times. But this affords no ground of certainty in particular cases.

Don't Waste Thoughts

DO you often feel hampered because you cannot give expression to your thoughts and desires?

This may put you in a position where you feel antagonistic toward some of the laws and regulations of society which you must obey.

It is unwise to permit yourself to think long or seriously about the restrictions which the law places upon you.

Your good judgment might be overpowered and you might give way to evil impulses, which might get you into trouble.

As a sane person you know that there must be laws to curb and check desires such as you have, if you entertain those of a lawless nature.

And why should you permit yourself to be disturbed by thoughts which you know are not right?

There are so many pleasing, helpful things, so many elevating things to think of and to enjoy.

There are so many subjects that might be interesting to you if you could find out something about them.

There is too much of good and inspiring things in the world to waste time or thought on sordid subjects.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

This Rising Moon

I WAS so weary of the day
And all the tasks it brought,
A shadow on my spirit lay,
A weight no hope could charm away
From my encumbered thought.

It must have been to meet such need
This miracle was sent,
That all earth's hungry hearts might feed
On beauty and, from anguish freed,
Drink deeply of content.

This rising moon such promise brings,
To match its golden hue
That from the depths of being springs
A joy which, birdlike, soars and sings
Notes rapturous and true.

And while this mounting splendor climbs
Across the waiting sky
As in life's far, Arcadian times,
All discord into sweetness chimes,
All frets and furies die.

Recipe for Success

JOHN G. CAPSTAFF, the man who worked out the method by which amateur photographers may take and exhibit moving pictures in color, says it came about as a result of "knowledge, experience and trying."

That, by the way, is about as good a recipe for success in any line as there is.

Great Passages from the Bible

"Be Strong, Fear Not"

(Isaiah 35: 1-10)

THE wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them; and the desert shall rejoice, and blossom as the rose.

It shall blossom abundantly, and rejoice even with joy and singing: the glory of Lebanon shall be given unto it, the excellency of Carmel and Sharon, they shall see the glory of the Lord, and the excellency of our God.

Strengthen ye the weak hands, and confirm the feeble knees.

Say to them that are of a fearful heart, Be strong, fear not: behold, your God will come with vengeance, even God with a recompence; he will come and save you.

Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped.

Then shall the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb sing: for in the wilderness shall waters break out, and streams in the desert.

And the parched ground shall become a pool, and the thirsty land springs of water: in the habitation of dragons, where each lay, shall be grass with reeds and rushes.

And an highway shall be there, and a way, and it shall be called The way of holiness; the unclean shall not pass over it; but it shall be for those: the wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein.

No lion shall be there, nor any ravenous beast shall go up thereon, it shall not be found there; but the redeemed shall walk there:

And the ransomed of the Lord shall return, and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads: they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away.

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

HERE'S some more of that there fun from police court that makes the policemen keep smiling. A guy was charged with being awful drunk and disorderly. He said he hadn't touched a drop since New Year's Eve.

"Your honor," says the cop, "he's no good. He ain't tellin' the truth. When I caught him he was jumpin' from roof to roof, and hollerin' like a siren, and he kept throwin' things so's he pretty near hit some innocent bystanders with pieces of coal."

"What do you say to that, prisoner?" says the judge.

"Well, the cop is right, but he don't understand my case. You see, there was two funny-looking giraffes that wouldn't quit runnin' after me, and I was obliged to use unusual measures. I'm sure your honor, would have done the same if you'd seen them long-necked things laughing at you and acting up so queer all night long, ever since I met them at a speakeasy on Main street."

These Modern Modes

SHE was very young and essentially modern, but a slight frown spoilt her matchless forehead.

Presently she gave up turning out the wardrobe and hurried into her mother's bed room.

"Mummie dear," she began petulantly, "I am having dinner with Dennis tonight and I can't find my new frock anywhere. Do you know where it is?"

Her mother looked up from her novel.

"Look again, dear," she said. "Perhaps you've got it on."

Couldn't Hold It

THE roar and rattle of the express as it rushed through the wayside station was followed by a yell and a crash.

The porter-clerk-signalman-stationmaster dashed out of the office and saw a young man sprawling among overturned milk cans, whilst a little boy gazed on interestedly.

"What happened?" asked the railway official. "Did he try to catch the express?"

"Yes," murmured the boy, "but it got away again."

OH, THESE WOMEN

By LEOLA ALLARD.

CALIFORNIA boasts a lady bootlegger who makes wine out of honey. It was so good that it was "a crime to confiscate it," said the officers, who, no doubt, found some way out of their dilemma.

Have you noticed that the idlers who stand around and watch the new buildings go up, are all men? That the people who crowd the park benches are men? That the cheap lodging houses for the down-and-outers are men's lodging houses?

Poor women are always busy women, too busy to sit around on park benches.

The Red Cross says that 30 per cent of the American women are undernourished. The doctors say they don't dress warmly enough, foreign visitors say they are all thoroughly spoiled, their divorced husbands say they are utterly selfish.

Always belittlin'!

An Omaha man lets his wife go out and earn the living and he stays at home and keeps house. A neighbor told it when she complimented him upon his delicious lemon cream pies. So now he makes two each day and sneaks one over to her house. The neighbor's husband earns their living while his wife stays at home.

Can't you see a love balm suit in the offing? If anyone could start an alienation suit, I claim a right smart lemon pie can turn the trick.

Among the things that modern women are learning to do without, prominent mention may be made of chaperones, underwear, stockings, company manners, home work, and husbands.

That's a new one. Catching your own husband on the rebound.

Gloria Swanson is trying to save $29,422.69 of her income tax, which totals $109,687.

To someone without it, that seems like an incredible amount of money for one year's vamping.
